Sewer Work Creates Dust Bowl for Norco Residents

"A little dust? Aye Yi Yi! Unless you live here you can't imagine."

Mrs. Ronald M. Ulshafer expressed the sentiments of more than a score of North Coventry families beleaguered in recent days, and especially Thursday, by "storms" reminiscent of the Dust bowl of the Western plains.

This is a year of progress for North Coventry, a rapidly developing township that is getting a million dollar sewer system.

But not all the growing pains are felt in the pocketbook. Some of the most painful experience is in breathing, eating, walking through, sitting in and trying to ignore the fine powdery dirt that has come upon the land.

MRS. ULSHAFER'S modern home at 565 West Cedarville road, is in the heart of the Norco "dust bowl," but she was able to take the nuisance with a degree of stoical humor.

"Our children are blonds," she smiled, "but recently I haven't been able to tell. We're so 'dirty' here I'm embarrassed

C-T BOARDS DROP MILLAGE, ADOPT NEW TAX

Occupation Levy Okayed; Secretary Resigns

The Collegeville and Trappe school boards dropped their real estate millage Thursday night but instituted a new occupation tax to balance their budgets.

Both boards dropped millage on property from 45 to 40 and instituted a 100 mill occupation levy under a revised Montgomery county occupation tax scale.

The Trappe board, the third member of the Perkiomen jointure, raised its real estate tax two mills, to 45, but decreased its occupation tax from 100 to 50 mills.

Following the individual board meetings, the joint board met in the Collegeville - Trappe High school and adopted a 1961-62 budget of $565,389, nearly $70,000 above the jointure budget of the

Warm Weather Extends Visit

Two days in a row? Unheard of!

But it happened Wednesday and Thursday.

Pottstonians plagued by below average temperatures and above average amounts of rain and cloudy skies enjoyed a second day of constant, bright sunshine Thursday.

The mercury was above normal with an average of 71 degrees. That's the first time that happened in more than a week.

The last time the average temperature got as high as 70 was April 15, when an average of 72 was recorded.

Today again will be mostly sunny and, also like Thursday, somewhat windy. Clouds are expected to gather this afternoon and bring showers or thundershowers late this afternoon or tonight.

Boy, 4, Falls From 2d Floor

A 4 year old Penn Village boy fell out of a second story window at his home Thursday evening and was admitted to Pottstown hospital for observation.

Allen B. Crites, son of Mrs. Nancy J. Crites, 39 Boone court, fell from a bedroom window at 7:30 o'clock.

Part of the child's body first struck a porch roof and he landed on his side on the ground. He fell between 10 and 15 feet, Mrs. Crites said.

The child will be X-rayed today, it was indicated.

Swarm of Bees Invades Property

A swarm of bees invaded a Maple tree on the property of Henry Stark, 130 Schaeffer street, Boyertown, Thursday night.

The neighborhood was attracted by the sight of the queen bee and her 3000 followers.

TV COMPANY IS ORDERED TO VACATE

BUILDING PLANNED FOR NEW LESSEE

If bad news comes by threes, the third part came Thursday when Dory's Television Sales and Service, 356 High street, announced the imminent closure of its business at that location. It will relocate. The firm was given until June 30 to vacate the premises.

But two other businesses will not. On Wednesday, W. Auchenbach and Son, incorporated, wholesale grocer at South and Penn streets announced through legal representatives its intention to file for a certificate of dissolution.

Earlier in the week, Richard Lindauer, operator of Dick's Parking lot, 356 High street, announced he was ordered to vacate the property by June 30.

Dory's TV and Dick's Parking lot are at the same address—on a site owned by Judge Harold Saylor, Philadelphia, a former resident of

Firm's End Marks Passing of An Era

Like parts of a riverbank washed away by the stream, parts of a town's history are carried away by the stream of time.

An old and familiar part of Pottstown's history was carried away this week when legal representatives of W. Auchenbach and Son, incorporated, wholesale grocers at South and Penn streets, announced their intention to file for a certificate of dissolution.

More than 100 years ago, when Pottstown was little more than a rutted, one-street town, Auchenbach's grocery began its wholesale service to the area.

It operated through the Civil War, the gay nineties, World War I the Depression, World War II and until the death of the last remaining partner, Walter R. Neiman, 135 Beech street, on April 11.

At one time the only wholesale grocery in this area, the firm slowly dwindled in importance and volume of business because of the rapid growth of the supermarket. At one time, Auchenbach's supplied 250 retail stores. At Mr. Neiman's death, they supplied 150.

One of the long-time employes of Auchenbach's, Mrs. David Fithian, 548 Manatawny street, stood Thursday night at the back of her small farm house near the edge of the borough. Mrs. Fithian looked back over the 37 years she was employed

Scribe Will Not Only See 1st Circus He'll Be in it

Ever hear of a grownup who never saw a circus?

Well, The Mercury has!

Most kids, if they don't want to run away to join the greatest show on earth, certainly carry water to the elephants to get in free.

Or they crawl under the bigtop's edge to see the show.

Willard S. Randall, a Mercury staffer, never went to the sawdust ring or the bustling sideshow. He never licked on a strand of cotton candy while the brass band led a spectacular into the midway.

Next week he'll get his chance.

He'll spend some time on the road with the Clyde Beatty, Cole brothers circus, which appears here June 2 for two Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored performances.

He'll savor of circus life, live and eat with the top performers and sideshow entertainers, and take part in regular performances.

He'll act as clown ringmaster for the 4 p. m., matinee performance at Pottsgrove High school.

Between now and then and after the show here he'll give Mercury readers inside glimpses of circus life through eyes of one who never smelled the tanbark.

The windup will be when he rides an elephant into the bigtop, fully made up and dressed in clown's attire, and opens the Pottstown show as ringmaster.

Pupils Suspended For Drinking

Five Boyertown High school pupils were suspended from school for drinking intoxicating beverages on the Senior class trip to Washington, D. C.

The fact that infractions of rules took place was confirmed Thursday by Harry Gilbert, High school principal, but he declined to make the pupils' names public.

Gilbert said the pupils were reprimanded and sent home and their parents were notified of their misconduct. They were suspended from school for a day.

Despite the misbehavior of the five pupils the Senior class received commendations for its conduct on the trip, the principal said.

He said the proprietor of the hotel at which the class stayed overnight was impressed by the pupils' good conduct.

Beautician Denies Board Tied Strings to Permit

The battle between the borough and a North End beauty salon erupted again Thursday over the restrictions placed on the original permit issued in 1951.

At the same time, Borough Council President J. Wayne Knause reported the receipt of more than 60 postcards and letters protesting the borough's closing order.

COMPLAINTS TRACED TO H.Y. SEIDEL

Assessor Sought Closing Of Salon

The case of the borough versus the beauty salon took another strange twist Thursday.

Sparky and Joanne's was ordered closed by the planning committee after Borough Assessor Horace Y. Seidel reported "numerous complaints" from residents in the area of 247 North Price street.

Thursday it turned out the numerous complaints were actually one complaint—and the one complaint was by

The salon, Sparky and Joanne's, at 247 Price street, was ordered closed by June 1 because "it no longer conforms to the specifications for a home operation in a R-1 (residential) area."

ALBERT D. DERECOLA, who said earlier he would ignore the closing order even if it means jail, charged that the permit "was issued with no restrictions—especially concerning a home occupation."

"All we asked for was a permit to operate a beauty salon in the basement of our home," the owner of the salon continued. "The question of a home operation never even came up."

Assistant Borough Solicitor Ronald H. Reynier, who investigated the borough's charges, pointed out that "while the borough records are devoid of any informa-

Assistant Borough Solicitor Ronald H. Reynier, however, said that the public protest will have no effect on the borough's order "because the zoning ordinances are quasi-criminal and therefore the order grows out of the borough's policing power."

Committee of 14 Named to Study Transit Situation

Thirteen civic, industrial and educational leaders will be asked to serve on a committee to seek a solution to Pottstown's transportation crisis, Borough Council President J. Wayne Knause announced Thursday.

Knause hopes to call a meeting of the committee during the week of June 4 in order to prepare a preliminary report for the June 12 borough council meeting.

"What the committee will do is see if there isn't some way to keep the bus company in Pottstown or make provisions for the continuation of service if the bus company does end its operation," Knause explained.

The Pottstown Rapid Transit company, faced with mounting financial losses and a serious decline in passengers, announced May 15 that it will petition the Public Utility commission for permission to cease operation.

The women of Friendship Methodist church, Berlin, Md., had an emergency meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Their problem? What could they do to give Warren C. Holden, Pottstown RD 1 "pioneer" returning to his hometown after an absence of 40 years, the reception of the celebrated man he became the past 11 days?

"We simply don't know what to do," said Mrs. Howard Pruitte, church committeewoman and friend of the "prairie schooner" pilot some 50 years.

Endorses 'Cooling Off' Plea By Attorney General

U. S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy was praised Thursday night as "a man deeply interested and deeply concerned" with the fight of the Negro to gain equality in the South.

The praise came from State Attorney General Anne X. Alpern in a hurried interview in her car after she gave the main address at graduation ceremonies for 19 nurses from the Pottstown hospital school of nursing.

She called the problem of integration "one of the most complicated things imaginable" and said that "Mr. Kennedy must have had a reason when he asked the Freedom Riders for a cooling-off period."

The cooling-off plea fell on deaf ears and a NAACP official

'Use Your Opportunities' Nursing Graduates Told

A trifle nervous and more than a little proud, 19 young women walked down the aisle of Pottstown High school's new auditorium Thursday night into the official white world of the professional nurse.

Representing the largest graduating class since 1945 from the Pottstown hospital school of nursing, the graduates received their diplomas and pins after hearing an address by Anne X. Alpern, attorney general of Pennsylvania.

The diplomas were awarded by Sam H. Keiser, vice president of the hospital's board of trustees. Johanna Broske, director of nursing, presented each graduate with the nursing pin.

The program began shortly after 7 o'clock—the attorney general's arrival was slightly delayed—with a processional and the invocation by Dr. Emil Schorsch, rabbi of Congregation Mercy and Truth synagog.

IN ADDRESSING the graduates, Miss Alpern said it was significant that the symbol of the nursing and legal professions was the same — a woman.

OBITUARIES

D. Arthur Karr Dies At Age 83

D. Arthur Karr, 83, husband of Minerva L. (Jape) Karr, Pinetop, Douglassville RD 2, died at his home Thursday at 12:30 p. m. He was in ill health for the past three weeks.

Born in Wellsboro, he was the son of the late David O. and Agnes B. (Locke) Karr, and lived in the Philadelphia and Haddon Heights, N. J., areas for many years. Later, he lived in the Reading area before moving to the Douglassville address.

He was employed for the past 25 years by the Seaboard supply company as an animal nutritionist. Prior to that, he was associated with the M. F. Barringer feed and grain company.

He attended the St. Gabriel's Episcopal church, Douglassville, and was a member of the Elks lodge of Reading, and the Eastern Pennsylvania Feed and Grain Dealers association.

Surviving with his wife are: a daughter Marion, wife of Richard Neill, Bolivar, N. Y.; a son, Raymond A. Karr, Warren, Ohio; three grandchildren, one step-daughter, Lillian, wife of A. Raymond Moore, Douglassville RD 2; and a step-son, Wallace H. Rohlfing, Edgewater Park, N. J. There are also two step-grandchildren, and one step-great-grandchild surviving.

Funeral services will be Monday at the convenience of the family from St. Gabriel's Episcopal church, Douglassville. The Rev. Woodworth B. Allen, pastor of St. Gabriel's church, will officiate. Interment will be in Brandywine Baptist cemetery, Chadds Ford. Arrangements are by Houck Funeral home, 112 North Washington street.

Local Woman's Mother Dies

Mrs. Albert F. Erb, 617 North Evans treet, learned Thursday of the death of her mother, Sarah Alice (Klinger) Knecht, 93, in her Tower City home.

Mrs. Knecht, mother of three sons and three daughters, was regarded as one of the leading matrons of Tower City society the past 75 years.

Her late husband, William F. Knecht, was publisher of West Schuylkill Press more than 30 years.

Her son, William K., currently is a State assemblyman and publisher of the West Schuylkill Herald. A grandson, Fred, is publisher of both the Schuylkill Haven Call and the Orwigsburg News.

Mrs. Knecht was born in Fearnot, Schuylkill county, the daughter of the late William and Maria (Kaufman) Klinger. She lived in Tower City most of her life.

She was a member of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Tower City, and was the last member of her immediate family, which included 11 brothers and sisters.

Surviving are three sons, Roy, Heavener, Okla.; William K., Tower City; Kary E., Tyrone; three daughters, Mildred, of Pottstown; Merle, at home; Louise, wife of Philip Borke, Hershey; and 13 grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren.

Services will be today from the Dreisigacker Funeral home, Tower City. Officiating will be the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sell, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church.

Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery, Tower City.

NORCO WOMAN FOUND DEAD BY FAMILY

Firestone Employe Dies Of Natural Causes

Eva Titanic, Keim street, North Coventry township, was found dead Thursday night at 9 o'clock at her home.

A certificate of death by natural causes was issued by Chester County Coroner Cooper T. Bishop, Phoenixville.

Miss Titanic was found by her family. Bishop said she died Tuesday.

She was born in Windber, a daughter of Tekla Titanic, Spring City RD 1, and the late Nicholas Titanic.

She came to the Pottstown area in 1920. She began working with the Firestone Tire and Rubber company when the local plant was opened.

In addition to her mother, she is survived by four brothers and a sister, Stephen, of Sell road, Pottstown RD 3; Charles, of Pottstown RD 2, John and Frank, both of Spring City RD 1, and Ann, wife of John Worobetz, Phoenixville RD 1.

Funeral arrangements, being handled by the Fleischmann funeral home, 726 High street, are incomplete.

"The flowers and the trees are just brown. When you try to wash, it just doesn't look clean. There's no detergent that can get rid of this stuff."

The dust has resulted from fill left by sewer workers and was precipitated by the recent dry spell.

WHILE THE Ulshafers have only one side of the house fronting on the torn up street and can get some fresh air by opening the rear windows, not so with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Nitterauer, 1110 Laurelwood road. The Nitterauers get the dust from two sides as their home is at the intersection of Laurelwood and West Cedarville roads.

"We've left our storm windows on even though it's hot," Nitterauer said, "but the stuff still gets in. It's really annoying because you can't relax on the porch in the evening and you can't even walk through the grass without getting your feet dirty."

Even rain would be an uncertain blessing now, Mrs. Nitterauer indicated. "If it rains now we're going to be walking in mud again the way we were a few weeks ago."

Another family at the Laurelwood-Cedarville intersection is that of Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Geary, 1089 Laurelwood road.

"It's been pretty bad today with the wind," said the Gearys' daughter, Susan. "It reminded me of the way the snow came in the Winter. But I don't believe the dust is as bad as the mud we had a couple weeks ago when it rained a lot."

CARS AND trucks rolling down Route 183 cause great swirls of dust in the vicinity of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Hale, 97 West Schuylkill road.

"Things are particularly bad with the heavy morning and evening work traffic," Hale said. "Our grass is getting pretty high but I'm afraid to mow it because the dirt might foul up the lawnmower."

The Route 183 traffic not only raises dust to offend residents' taste and smell, Hale suggested, "but when the trucks hit some of these holes it sounds like the bodies are coming apart."

Curtains in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bickel are "starting to change color from the dust," Mrs. Bickel said. The couple's home at 780 West Cedarville road marks the eastern end of the street uprooted at present.

"Everything's a dusty red on hedges and trees and outdoor furniture," Mrs. Bickel declared. "I hope we don't have to go through the Summer like this."

The roads have been sprayed with water during dry periods but the effect lasts only an hour or two, residents indicated.

Mrs. Ulshafer summed up the situation, "We're hoping for a good rain. That will be a problem, too, but at least the air will be clean for a while."

Firm's End Marks

at Auchenbach's.

A small, white-haired woman with a warm smile and a far-reaching memory, she recalled her association with Auchenbach's and Mr. Neiman fondly:

"Things changed a great deal during the years Auchenbach's only serviced retail stores in a 15-mile radius, but I can remember when salesmen went on their rounds, on their horses and buggies, and would be gone two days!

"Travel was so slow in those days, they could never make it back in the same day. They would have to stay over night somewhere."

MRS. FITHIAN recalled a typical morning at Auchenbach's during "the old days":

After loading the deliveries on his wagon, the old-timer driver for Auchenbach's would jump on the front seat, grasp the reins, and giving them a toss, signal the horse to begin his familiar route.

Plodding up Hanover street the horse would pass through town and start the long, often overnight journey.

Describing how groceries were sold in the "old days," Mrs. Fithian said:

"There were few 'package goods' in those days. Everything came in barrels—sugar, crackers, biscuits. And potatoes—they used to sell so many potatoes! We would buy them by the car load.

"There was no such thing as 'canned goods' when Auchenbach's first started. Things were dried then. We had dried string beans, dried navy beans and dried fruit. Now you seldom see any of that—everything is frozen."

"I can remember one time when we visited some friends. They brought out a can of crushed corn. We thought this must be the greatest delicacy in the world.

"Now a woman can be married 20 years and never have to peel a potato," she said.

In speaking of Mr. Neiman, Mrs. Fithian recalled how he started in the business as a young man and worked his way up to president of the firm.

When he died, after 55 years of service to the firm, Auchenbach's—the oldest and last wholesale grocery—died with him.

Band Performs Before 400

Owen J. Roberts Junior Senior High school concert band performed before 400 parents and guests in its annual Spring concernt Thursday. The 59 piece band presented a program which included classic and semi-classic numbers and concert marches.

Two South American compositions, Serenata and Maracaibo, drew especially appreciative applause from the audience, according to director Robert Bailey.

Featured soloists at the performance in the school auditorium were Robert Hilborn, David Hilborn, and John Grebe.

A novelty was "Southern Wedding" in which musicians in costume told the complete story of a wedding with their instruments.

Boroughs Association Meets in Pennsburg

The Spring meeting of the Montgomery County Boroughs association took place in the Pennsburg firehouse with Upper Perkiomen borough as host.

Member groups are, East Greenville, Red Hill, Perkiomen and Green Lane.

Mayors of the boroughs were introduced by Leon Godshall of Royersford.

More than 225 people attended the meeting representing 22 boroughs.

Collective Farms, U.S.A.?

WHEN he appeared before a Congressional committee considering his appointment as secretary of agriculture, Orville Freeman readily admitted he wasn't an expert on farming, but that he was willing to learn.

After less than six months in office, we hope that Mr. Freeman is now an expert on the multitudinous aspects of farming, because if the Cochran-Freeman farm bill becomes law, he will be absolutely in charge of every chicken, every cow, and every sprig of crop that grows anywhere in the 50 states.

Charles B. Shuman, President of the American Farm bureau, speaking in behalf of more than a million U.S. farm families, pointed out why this bill would place all power over America's largest industry in Mr. Freeman's hands.

Under the plan, he reported, Mr. Freeman and his assistants and field men would hand pick the farmers who would "advise" the department on programs for the crops they grow.

But Mr. Freeman is under no compulsion to accept even the advice of the men he selects, and in fact can dismiss them if he desires. He can also place his own alternative program on the ballot when the farmers go to vote on the program. He can "exempt" any farmers he chooses from voting privileges.

Cattle growers, who consume feed grains, will have nothing to say about the feed grain program. Feed grain raisers, who depend on cattle growers for much of their market, will not be represented when a cattle program is considered.

The city man at the head of the agriculture department will have the final say in acreage allotments.

He can put a ceiling on the amount of Federal largesse any farm may receive, while putting a ceiling on what its crops will bring in the free market—spelling financial distress for the farmers who have proved themselves most efficient.

The controls would spread from crop to crop. For instance, a control on cattle will mean that feed grain prices will fall. So chicken farmers will step up egg production. Then we'll have to have controls on eggs.

And the bill would allow the agriculture department free access to the Treasury without having to get Congressional appropriations.

Embarrassed Taxmen

THE Internal Revenue service in a memorandum has confessed "considerable embarrassment" at public reaction to its sale of an Amish farmer's horses.

The Pennsylvania farmer had refused to pay his social security taxes because his religion forbids "insurance."

The IRS tried to explain to him that social security payments are not insurance—they're a tax, and the Amish do pay taxes.

And it is a tax, although the government has tried to convince Americans that social security is insurance, and that what they pay is carefully put away for their old age.

In fact, it is immediately paid out in benefits.

"We have no other choice under the law," the IRS pleads in defending its horse rustling.

Of course it had. The law doesn't specify that the defiant taxpayer be deprived of the one asset that allows him to continue farming. But that's the property, of all of the property on the farm, that the government chose to confiscate.

In lieu of a few hundred dollars, the bureaucrats seem all too ready to confiscate a man's means of livelihood.

IRS isn't nearly embarrassed enough.

Homework

WASHINGTON ever is willing to take on another job, no matter how full its hands may be with the problems it already has failed to solve.

An appropriation of $10,000,000 is asked for fighting juvenile delinquency, and Attorney General Robert Kennedy calls for more Federal assistance to local police to fight crime.

Meanwhile, in Washington, D. C., which depends entirely upon the Federal government's know-how to keep crime down, the local papers are full of news of a crime wave and juvenile delinquency.

What is it that the Federal government knows about controlling crime and juvenile delinquency that it is holding out on the hard-pressed citizens of the nation's capital?

Or, if it has no real approach to the problem, why pass more Federal appropriations to spread this lack of knowledge around?

PUNKIN CORNERS,

Editor, The Mercury,
Dear Sir 'n' Brother:

Wal, I see by the papers where thrifty Ben Franklin certainly would have loved today's youngsters! In New York state alone, it has just been reported, pupils have some $56.7 million on deposits in school savings accounts!

In his childhood, your Grampaw Oakley, too, had to be a financial genius. He had to make his weekly dime allowance cover an ice cream cone and a trip to the nickelodeon!

Fifty-six million dollaroos! Gosh! Laid end-to-end, how many sticks of bubble-gum would that be?—or, bubble-to-bubble?

Hopin' you air the same,

Censorship Leads to End of Culture?

Where Censorship Ceases!

To the Editor: In answer to charges that the nation would be better off with a censor for television programs ("Suppressing News", Reader's Say, May 20), I would point out that the government new censors movies and books and does a miserable job.

To the government censors, anything ranging from the strict, narrow minded view of public propriety is banned. Note "Lady Chatterly's Lover," banned until a recent court decision and the books of Henry Miller — Tropic of Cancer, Tropic of Capricorn, Sexus, Plexus — that are still banned and have made Miller an outcast in his native America.

Give the government — and it makes no difference whether Republican, Democratic or even a Vegitarian-Prohibitionist coalition — another censorship job and the cultural wasteland known as television will lose what little intelligent programming is left.

Programs on birth control will be banned for fear of "bothering" part of the population. Programs on medical aid for the aged will be banned for fear of "hurting" the doctors. And Bertie the Bunyip will be banned because the censor doesn't like it!

North Coventry ANTI-CENSOR

Resist Censorship!

To the Editor: First the Laotian crisis, then the Cuba fiasco and now the Democrats are trying to hide their mistakes by appointing a press czar.

The move is the most obvious attempt ever made to muzzle the press to hide an administration's mistakes. Of course the Kennedy administration won't admit it. Their line is that we're in the "most crucial" time in our history and that someone is needed to tell the newspapers what to write and what not to write.

Well, it seems to me the American newspapers did okay during the two World wars and the Korean war without a press czar—the word is much more honest than press advisor—to tell them what was in the national interest and what wasn't.

I hope The Mercury and every other newspaper in the country will band together to resist this infringement on the first amendment to the constitution.

Pottstown DISGRUNTLED DEMOCRAT

Pottstown Let Down Pottstown?

To the Editor: In regard to the letter signed "Majorette" (Readers Say, Monday, May 22), I'd like to point out Pottstown High school hasn't forsaken the Washington AAA parade, but it has forsaken Pottstown.

Even though Pottstown was down in Washington may years before Boyertown High school, they never brought back 10 trophies like Boyertown did. This never was achieved before.

Boyertown must be recognized as one of the best bands in the area. I think Boyertown should meet Pottstown headon and find the result.

Obelisk U. R. RONG

Not Second Best, First

To the Editor: I differ with the letter from the Majorette in Monday's Mercury. "Just Second Best," Readers Say, May 22).

Boyertown is not second best, we are first in band, color guard and in twirling.

If we would not have been best we would not have gotten first place in all major divisions.

Boyertown made a clean sweep, and it seems to me that Pottstown is jealous on the matter, and it is showing.

If Pottstown thinks they are so good why didn't they go to Washington and try to beat us instead of just talking about it? ? ? From a Boyertowner and very very proud of it too.

The Voice of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Jottings in Pencil

MIKE NICHOLAS and Elaine May may make their motion picture debut in Joe Levine's "Boy's Night Out," if negotiations now under way go through.

The current romance of a not-so-young musical comedy player (and night club star) is raising eyebrows even among the most sophisticated Broadwayites. He's 18!

Linda Darnell, who wasn't too successful with her recent attempt as a night club performer, has whipped up an entirely new routine and will try again with an engagement at a bistro in El Paso.

Carole Tregoff is reported to have received $25,000 for her life story from a London newspaper.

NOBODY COULD identify the girl with Arthur Miller at Basin Street East the other night — she was a beauty with light brown hair — but the song she and Arthur seemed to like best was "People Will Say We're in Love."

Linda Christian is villa shopping in Rome. She's planning to settle there and put her two daughters, by Tyrone Power in an Italian school.

Brook Benton's autobiography (ghost written) will be titled "Just Let Me Sing and I'm Happy."

Bernard Goldfine's latest squealing binge is boomeranging on the Democrats. One of the party's most powerful figures seems to be in the mess right up to his ears.

STOP THE presses: Gina Lollobrigida passed her driving test.

Mickey Mantle has been making the night spots with the ubiquitousness of a Broadway columnist.

The brass at 20th Century-Fox are amazed at the early reaction to the film "Misty"—for instance, at one theater in South Carolina the low-budget picture did more business than any flicker in the history of the movie house, except "Gone With the Wind." And it's frankly presented as a "family picture," with no sex angle at all.

Mary Ann Mobley's mother flew in from Mississippi to be with her daughter at St. Clare's hospital. Doctors have been making X-ray and blood tests, but haven't decided what's ailing the former Miss America.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

DOROTHY M., aged 27, is an attractive nurse.

Recently she accepted a blind date with a college bachelor named Roscoe.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I was shocked to find that any man who had four years at the university would be so rude and impolite.

"I'm not a prude about table manners or etiquette, but at least when a man is with a girl for the first time, wouldn't you think he would try to put his best foot forward?

"Well, when we had dinner at a restaurant downtown, Roscoe blew his nose violently at the table several time.

"BEING A doctor, you know this is in very bad taste anywhere, and certainly more so in a crowded place.

"He also ate peas off his knife, believe it or not. And he left his teaspoon standing in his coffee cup after he had stirred the sugar therein.

"Then he cleared his throat repeatedly. Maybe his heavy use of cigarets had caused extra phlegm in his trachea, but why didn't he excuse himself and go to the rest room for his coughing.

"All he lacked to finish the picture properly was a cuspidor or spittoon beside our table.

"Being a nurse, I am accustomed to a lot of unpleasant things, but when I go out to eat in a pretty restaurant, I prefer to get away from it.

Yes, Dorothy, I know what you mean. We need a revival of Emily Post's vigorous tutoring of young America on etiquette.

IN MEDICAL school even we callous students were rather shocked by one of our psychiatry profs who pick the wax out of his ears during his lecture.

He used the end of the temple bar of his horn rimmed glasses to dig out the wax.

Then he'd contentedly lick the ear wax off the bar piece like a toddler sucking on a lollipop.

Apparently he didn't even realize his addiction to this infantile habit.

Another professor used to stand in front of the class and pick his nose. Then he'd lick the salvaged secretions from his fingers, without even breaking the tempo of his lectures.

One of these profs was a bachelor, so maybe he had never had any home training by his mother and missed a wife's criticisms.

Ever new generatiion needs to be tutored in simple etiquette. A lot of you modern women thus leave your hats on during a show and offend the folks behind you.

Many of you sweaty folks also need more deodorants and frequenter baths.

Advice for the overweight: Send for Dr. Crane's "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," in care of the Mercury, enclosing long four-cent stamped addressed envelope and 20c.

Inside Television

By EVE STARR

STARR REPORT: To all intents and purposes, there are only going to be two kinds of shows on the air this Fall—present day action and comedy. It's as though the networks had decided, quite arbitrarily, that the viewer either wants to laugh or to identify himself with what is going on in the world today, politics or world affairs aside.

There will be a total of 21 present-day action shows, a category which includes the private eyes, the policemen and the wandering adventurers.

The lone period show, "The Americans," has failed to make the grade for 1961-62 and NBC is now scouting around for a replacement once it finishes its Summer run of repeats. The only other series that comes even close to being a period piece is ABC's "The Untouchables."

COMEDIES, ALMOST all of them of the familiar half-hour situation variety, will total no fewer than 25, with more than half of them (14, to be exact) airing on CBS.

Variety shows, adding up to 11 (six on NBC), will rank third. The once mighty Western has been summarily relegated to fourth place with a mere 10 entries (couple of years ago there were 31 oaters on the air).

There will be six cartoon shows and six of the audience participation variety, four in the public affairs category and only three dramatic anthologies, the saddest commentary of all.

Add it all up and one comes to the inescapable conclusion that the networks believe the American public simply doesn't want to think. Public affairs programs are scheduled only because the FCC has put the pressure on. The only other kind of show that can make a viewer think is a good drama, and apparently there is going to be a vast lack of good drama.

THIS LEAVES the whole dramatic shooting match squarely in the hands of Dick Powell and his cohorts at Four Star. Powell's new hour-long anthology series will be the only show on the air with the potential capability of measuring up to the defunct "Studio One," "Playhouse 90," "Kraft Theater" and all the other fine dramatic shows of long, long ago.

Just what Powell intends to do with his series is still a matter of conjecture. But if he turns it into just another cops-and-robbers storytelling session with all action and no thought, then he's not only missed the boat but has ducked a responsibility.

One can watch the "Surfside Sick" (as one ABC executice frankly refers to it) kind of show just so often—like maybe once. After that it palls. And so do most of the other so-called modern-action shows. It strikes me as very strange indeed that TV in its infancy came up with more good, solid, well-written drama than it has ever been able to do in its maturity.

Interpreting The News

Congressmen Slow In Warming To JFK

By ARTHUR EDSON
Associated Press Observer

President Kennedy looked out Thursday over the assembled Congress, where he has sat and listened to other presidents, and said earnestly: "These are extraordinary times."

Except for annual State of the Union messages, which have become sort of a ritual, presidents don't go traipsing up to Congress, officially, very often.

It has been more than four years since a president has appeared under somewhat similar conditions. Dwight D. Eisenhower came before Congress on Jan. 5, 1957, when the Middle East crisis was bubbling. Excepting the regular State of the Union talks, it's the only time in his entire eight years that Eisenhower paid an official call on our legislators.

Kennedy has been in office a scant four months, and here he is, making a plea that's literally out of this world.

"I believe we should go to the moon," Kennedy said.

But for 30 minutes it looked as if Kennedy had made a mistake taking that trip of a mile and a half to Congress, much less aiming for the moon. He appeared headed for the most unapplauded speech ever made by a president to Congress.

In that half-hour, applause for his words had rolled through that historic House chamber exactly once.

To be fair, it wasn't the sort of speech to set off yells, either rebel or Yankee.

To be blunt, it was also being read poorly by the President.

Some White House copyreader, possibly Kennedy himself, had decided the prepared text was too long and extraneous limbs and twigs had been whacked off, whole paragraphs at a time.

These deletions didn't seem to damage his argument much, but Kennedy read as if all inspiration were gone. Toward the end, he picked up steam. And where he had once tried to condense it, he now tossed in a couple of ad lib paragraphs.

He wound up with 17 breaks for applause in a speech that lasted three-quarters of an hour, well above the five bursts Eisenhower got during his 33-minute State of the Union speech in 1957. But Thursday's showing was far below the 37 interruptions for applause that Kennedy got in his State of the Union address four months ago.

Incidentally, this whole business of appearing before Congress depends on the whim and the character of the president. George Washington and John Adams both addressed joint sessions of Congress, but Thomas Jefferson, a terrible public speaker, merely sent a note along, telling Congress what was on his mind.

Wilson took the show on the road regularly, making 20 appearances. Since Wilson, Herbert Hoover is the only president who didn't address a joint session of Congress at least once.

PEN PALS — A retired Sell road, Pottstown executive has a hobby of writing letters to prominent personages throughout the country. The past week, they started writing back to him. Robert M. Miller, who retired 10 years ago as president of a large Philadelphia manufacturing concern, received response to his epistles after writing a poem on the merits and challenges of the American space program and sending copies of it to leading American officials. The first reply reached Miller the past Wednesday. It was from Navy Lt. Commander Alan S. Shephard, first space pilot and member of the seven man Project Mercury team. Miller explained the reason for his good fortune in being one of a hanful of well wishers to receive letters from Shephard out of the thousands who wrote and wired him was, he waited to send his letter until Shephard returned to his home after the space shot. Shephard recognized Miller's name as that of the author of the poesy he received earlier, and sent a speedy response. . . .

★ THEN, THURSDAY, Miller received his second epistle from a famous personage. This one was from President John F. Kennedy, also a recipient of a copy of the poem. Kennedy thanked Miller for his interest and support of the project, and invited him to write more material to him on the subject if he wished. The President said he intended to pass on the poem to other high Washington officials and members of his family. Miller said other copies of his work and letters were sent to other members of the government and armed forces. He pointed out he received acclaim for the poem, published privately, the past year from another high dignitary, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The Sell road retiree has written many poems and letters over the years, but refuses to market them. He felt they would no longer be a hobby, but become a chore for him.

the decisions in something like this."

Joining Knause on the 14-member committee will be: William A. O'Donnell Jr., president and solicitor for the 25 year old transit firm; School Board President H. Bert Shaw and Superintendent Havard Fosnocht; Burgess John B. Hartenstine Jr.; Councilman Charles Shaner, chairman of council's parking lot committee; and Borough Manager Robert H. McKinney Jr.

Also Republican Party Chairman William J. Boden Sr. and Democratic Party Chairman Joseph A. Suchoza Jr.; Chamber of Commerce President A. Ralph Thomas and Mercantile Bureau Chairman Harry Pollock; the Rev. Richard G. Hoffert, pastor of Grace Lutheran church; Shandy Hill, general manager of The Mercury; Robert Garber, president of United Rubber Workers local 336 at Firestone Tire and Rubber company and president of the local union presidents association; and Morris Gavin, plant manager for Dana corporation.

Knause explained that the men represent "a cross-section of the public and ones who should be deeply interested in the fate of the borough's transportation system."

He renewed his belief that "no snap judgments" should be made "on a matter as vital as this." O'Donnell indicated earlier that it was unlikely that the PUC would allow the company to drop its franchise before Sept. 1.

The end of bus service will affect approximately 2500 passengers daily and more than a million passengers a year, O'Donnell explained. It will also affect about 1000 school children who use the buses daily to and from the borough's 14 public and parochial schools.

'Confession' Is Topic At Patricians Meeting

Irma Wilson of Pottstown gave an informal lecture Thursday night on "Confession" at the monthly meeting of the Patricians of the St. Aloysius Catholic church.

The meeting was conducted in the school's cafeteria.

The Rev. John Heim, assistant rector, was the spiritual director.

The meeting was attended by 30 members.

The next meeting will be June 19 and the theme, "Holy Communion," will be presented by Kathaleen Gearhart at 8 p. m.

ANNE ALPERN PRAISES STAND

later explained that "there can be no cooling-off period in an effort to obtain one's citizenship rights. The effort must go on continuously by all feasible means."

"THE ATTORNEY General has shown in his every move the desire to impliment the Supreme Court's decision and secure the rights of Negroes," Miss Alpern said before leaving for a late testimonial banquet in Philadelphia.

"When he asked them to accept a cooling-off period he must have thought about it very carefully and had many reasons why it was the best move under the circumstances," Miss Alpern continued.

Following his cooling-off plea Wednesday Atty. Gen. Kennedy removed all but 100 of the 666 Federal marshals from strife-torn Montgomery, Ala.

He said that a "number of factors influenced this decision," including the continued patrolling of the city by the National Guard, effective action by the Alabama State police and the strong legal action taken by the Justice department.

The interview was originally scheduled before the start of the graduation ceremonies in the high school auditorium. Delayed, however, by the detour on Route 100 in North Coventry township, she was 25 minutes late and barely arrived at the school in time for the ceremonies.

Scheduled to speak at a testimonial dinner for Chief Justice Alvin Jones, of the State Supreme court, in Philadelphia, she slipped out of the auditorium at 8:10 p. m. after her speech and the presentation of diplomas to the 19 graduating nurses.

A Mercury reporter rode with her from the high school to the borough line, taking notes as she freshened up for the testimonial dinner after a work day that started in Harrisburg at 7:45 a. m. The car was driven by State Police Cpl. Arthur Berardi.

Frequent Hill Lecturer Jailed In Alabama

at The Hill school explained when told of the arrest by The Mercury. "That's the kind of man he was."

Hall and the Rev. Coffin served in the Army together at Camp Ritchie, Md., during World War II—Hall as a corporal and the Rev. Coffin as a private. They later went through officer's candidate school together and were discharged after the war as lieutenants.

FOLLOWING THE war he attended Yale university divinity school, then spent a year as chaplain at the Andover school in Andover, Mass.

"After Andover he went to Williams college," the Rev. Mark Brown, another friend remembered. "There he caused a big stir when he spoke out against the barring of persons from fraternities on religious or racial grounds.

"He felt very deeply about the rights of individuals and spoke out articulately on the matter. Just as the height of the controversy it caused, he accepted the position at Yale. That was about three years ago," The Hill school chaplain continued.

"I wasn't surprised either that he was with the 'Freedom Riders'," he continued. "It was very much in keeping with his character."

THE LAST time the Rev. Coffin spoke at The Hill school was two years ago, Hall remembered, "and his subject then, while not directly concerned with the integration of the South, was on the need for better relationships between the races."

He was also scheduled to speak at the school last Winter, but a change in the school schedule forced the postponement of the lecture until this Fall or Winter. Hall estimated that he speaks at the school every two years.

"This 'Freedom Ride' is the kind of thing he would do because he believes very deeply that integration is in keeping with the tradition of Christianity," Chaplain Brown added.

"I'm sure the stay in jail won't stop him from doing what he believes in."

offered a solution.

"Why don't we give the children the afternoon off from school and hold a reception at the town hall?", he suggested.

Everybody consented, save one elderly, white haired woman, Pearl Boston, Holden's elementary school teacher.

"I think we should do something at the church for him too," she protested.

So the two factions compromised.

When Holden appeared on the outskirts of the 2000 population town, he was met by Mayor Hudson, Police Chief Russell Ennis, and a small group of the town's leading citizens.

THEY USHERED Holden, his two horse team and puppy, and a State police escort into the main square of the town.

There a loud speaker blared out to some 500 residents who their honored guest was, and several short speeches of welcome were made.

Then representatives of the church invited Holden to come to a special celebration of his 58th birthday Sunday after church services in the town.

Holden's return to the town and church of his birth and youth came after a trip of 225 miles through Chester county, Delaware and Maryland.

Holden started his trek from his Pughtown road home 11 days ago. He will stay in Berlin about five days before returning to the area via the DuPont highway late next week.

Woolworth Manager Will Be Transferred

William S. Cornelius, present manager of the Pottstown F. W. Woolworth company store, will be transferred Thursday to the Lock Haven store.

Cornelius was manager for the Pottstown store for the past five and one-half years.

The new manager for the Pottstown store is James F. Isely of Upper Darby who will assume his duties Thursday.

CARS, TRUCK DAMAGED

Two cars and a truck were damaged Thursday at 1:35 p. m. in an accident at High and Keim streets. Cars driven by George A. Taggert, 1155 South street, and Joseph Malloy, Philadelphia, collided at the intersection. Taggert's car also hit a truck of the Jones Motor company, incorporated, Spring City, driven by Robert W. Heimback, Mock road, Pottstown Route 18.

J. Edgar Hoover Cites Increase In Rape Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — An alarming increase during the first three months of this year in big-city crimes—particularly rape—was reported by the FBI.

Director J. Edgar Hoover made this main point in expressing special concern about the 10 per cent increase in urban crime.

He said "Twenty-eight large American cities of 250,000 to 500,000 inhabitants reported a 41 per cent increase in forcible rape," compared to first three months of 1960, a record year for crime. Wilful murders were up 28 per cent in the big cities.

Street robberies were up 12 per cent, home robberies 8 per cent, robberies of business establishments 11 per cent, purse snatchings 24 per cent, shoplifting 21 per cent, burglaries 11 per cent, auto thefts 9 per cent.

The only bright spot: Pickpocket thefts were 18 per cent lower.

'Use Your Opportunities' Nursing Graduates Told woman," the former Allegheny county judge said.

"This is because woman symbolizes compassion and understanding — attributes necessary to both fields."

"It is also true that a woman is often stronger than a man. It is the woman who stays when a man cannot take the pressure. It is the nurse who stays when no one else is around."

THE ATTORNEY general told the graduates that life would have meaning for them only if they used the opportunities presented in their profession to the fullest.

"In the drama of life, there are many parts," she said. Among these girls graduating tonight will be some who will do great things, and some who will have some failures, because this is a cross section of life. In the drama of life many parts are required. It matters not how long your life, it matters only what you do with it."

Following the main address, awards and yearbooks were presented to the class. Dr. Schorsch then closed the program with a benediction.

Members of the graduating class were: Helen Nora Dierwechter, Judith Adele Dillman, Marie Bernadette Dori, Virginia Elaine Heydt, Maryann Margareta Lindinger, Edna Mary Long, Phyllis Patricia Maddaloni, Ann Marie Patricia McKerns, Carol Ann Moyer, Nancy Arlene Myers, Linda Mae Reist and Carolyn Irene Schriver.

Also: Marie Elizabeth Seybold, Carole Lynne Sherman, Cynthia Ann Staskiel, Carole Lee Sutton, Carol Lou Weitzel, Rhea Wiest and Carol Lee Yeager.

Inside You And Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

Capital Ideas For First Aid

VACATION'S coming. Will you be ready for any emergency?

You'll need more than the usual items in most first aid kits. Iodine or Merthiolate and Band-Aids can handle the ordinary run of cuts and scrapes.

In the case of larger wounds, wash the surrounding skin with soap or a germ-killing detergent like phisoHex. Dirt inside the cut can be rinsed away with sterilized water carried in an old baby bottle.

Dr. Fern

Cotton-tipped sticks help you paint Merthiolate on the skin without burning the open raw flesh. Cover with a three-inch gauze pad held in place by a one or two-inch roll of bandage.

Use Scissors

Reinforce the bandage with adhesive tape. Scissors make the whole job easier.

Cold water is the best first aid for burns. Spread soothing burn ointment over the area before bandaging later.

Include aspirins — pure, buffered or the kind with ingredients that doctors prescribe. They'll help those nightly sore muscles as well as that morning-after head!

If Junior turns green on long rides, ask your doctor about car-sickness medicine. Travel is more fun without those messy paper bags.

Stings And Bites

Ice cubes (from your cooler), rubbing alcohol and baking soda paste can soothe those inevitable bee stings and mosquito bites.

Calamine, Caladryl or similar lotions take the sting out of poison ivy. You'll bless that flashlight when you have work in the dark—if you don't forget batteries.

Special Medicines

Hay fever medicines and prescriptions keep handkerchiefs dry when some strange plant triggers your allergy. And don't forget special medicines that anyone in the family needs routinely.

Pack pencil and paper — to record treatment, dates, etc. And, most important, keep first aid supplies in the car trunk where Junior can't get at them. But be sure that you can!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr Fern in care of The Mercury.

Beautician Denies Board

tion on whether the 'home occupation' question came up at the original hearing, the two surviving members of the zoning board that issued the permit both say that it was the main issue in the case."

He said that he took statements from the two surviving board members — William H. Yohn and George C. Peacock—and that his decision to order the beauty salon closed was "based on their statements in the absence of any borough records on the home occupation question."

BOTH MEN are still members of the board and Yohn now serves as chairman. The third member of the board was Mr. Irvin Riegner.

Reynier also pointed out that in the original application, the shop was to be operated solely by Derecola's wife, Joanne. "At that time he was working at Dana corporation and wasn't even a beautician."

The shop now has five fulltime beauticians, including Derecola and his wife, and seven parttime employes. It operates Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday morning.

Derecola also pointed out that both the minutes of the Zoning Board of Adjustment hearing on Nov. 11, 1951, and a letter of notification that the application was approved dated Nov. 30 made no mention of the home occupation restriction the borough charges.

The minutes read:

"We are requested to allow a beauty shop to operate in the basement of a new home at Price and Morris streets. Mr. Francis Griffith (1004 Belleview avenue) objected to having a beauty shop at this location because it is a residential zone (R-1.) After careful consideration, the request was approved by the board of adjustment."

It, and the subsequent letter of notification, were signed by Dow X. Sears, former borough manager.

The letter read:

"The Zoning Board of Adjustment, at its meeting of Nov. 27, 1951, approved your request to operate a beauty shop in the basement of your residence at Price and Morris streets.

"You may therefore obtain your permit from our building inspector, Mr. (George) Kepner, at your convenience."

THE 63 POSTCARDS which Knause received carried his name and the borough hall address and were printed and distributed in the area and to the beauty shop patrons by Derecola and his wife.

In a letter to Derecola, Knause noted that "this letter is prompted by the form printed postcards which I have received from some of your customers. I can appreciate their sentiments on your behalf and I can understand your feelings in these matters." He also asked Derecola to distribute copies of the letters to his patrons as he did the postcards.

In the page and a half letter, Knause went over the same general reason for the closing order as the assistant borough solicitor, emphasizing that the operation is no longer a home occupation and that because the violation was not detected before does not now make it a legal one.

He also suggested that Derecola petition council to rezone the area to C-1, noting "I am personally in favor of any help which can be extended to a small business (and) I am certain that the entire borough council is in favor of increasing business activity in the borough."

". . . I suggest that you apply for a form petition requesting a change in the zoning of the neighborhood from the existing R-1 residential zoning to C-1 commercial zoning," Knause explained, pointing out that the signed petition should be then presented to borough council.

"Although the signed petition in itself does not require the Borough Council to change the zoning, it is one of the major factors which is considered before a decision is made," Knause explained, adding:

"I can assure you that we will give your petition every consideration."

SCOUTS WORK FOR BADGES AT CAMPOUT

Warwick Troop 101 Makes 20 Mile Hike

WARWICK-ST MARY'S—Mrs. Ira Amole, Corr., Phone AT 6-3352 Edwin Kurtz Del., Phone FA 3-1286

Warwick Boy Scout troop 101 and their Scoutmaster Walter Ayers and Assistant Scoutmaster Charles Mueller enjoyed a weekend campout through the courtesy of Paul Chonka on whose property they camped. Boys working on their hiking merit badges completed the badge by hiking twenty miles.

Yarns were exchanged around a campfire. All boys attended church. Campers were: Senior Patrol Leader Richard Herman, Assistant Senior Patrol Leader Dennis Wade; Flaming Arrow patrol, Richamond Watson, Barry Kulp and David Mordan, Panther patrol, Stanley Ozga, Charles Lawrence and Philip Chonka; Eagle patrol, Fred Ayers, David Strock, John Kolle and William Madden; Explorers, Harry Bradley, and Terry Piersol.

David and Jerry Chonka visited the campsite, as did Assistant Scoutmaster Kenneth Kulp and Mr. and Mrs. Richmond Watson and daughter Charlotte.

Confirmation services will be held at St. Mary's Episcopal church on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Bishop W. M. Roberts will administer the rite of confirmation and deliver the sermon. There will be a reception at the church following the service.

THE REGULAR service of morning prayer and sermon will be at 9:30 o'clock with church school following.

Mrs. David Strock and Mrs. Stanley Ozga called on Grant Handwork.

Clair Sheeler called on his aunt, Katherine Richards, who is recuperating from a broken hip.

Mrs. Ira Butler and Ida Richards called at the Roberts home.

Mrs. Percy M. Yoas attended the annual alumni day exercises at West Chester State college. Mrs. Yoas attended her 30th class reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Woodworth, Reading are spending some time in Warwick.

Cub Scout dens 4 and 3 held a roast at the home of Mrs. Josephine Ozga. They were instructed in the art of making outdoor fires. The party ended with a baseball game. Mrs. Ozga is den mother of pack 4 and Mrs. Alice Garner den mother of group 3.

Seidel.

On June 10 1960, Seidel wrote Borough Council President J. Wayne Knause "to report a violation of the Pottstown Zoning ordinance."

ALMOST a year later—on May 1—Seidel told the planning committee at a meeting in borough council chambers that "there have been numerous complaints about the beauty shop from the people in the neighborhood."

Acting on the advice of the borough solicitor and the "numerous complaints" reported by Seidel, the committee ordered the beauty salon closed.

Seidel, however, neglected to mention to the committee that he was one of the "numerous" complainants—or, in fact, the only complainant.

He also neglected to mention that he lives at Morris and Beech streets — less than two blocks from the beauty salon.

And he also neglected to show the committee the letter he sent to Knause when he made the only complaint. The letter follows:

"I would like to report a violation of the Pottstown Zoning ordinance.

"There is a commercial establishment located on the southwest corner of Morris and Price streets which is in an R-1 zone. This establishment has developed from a home occupation to the employment of ten or more people.

"I feel, that in fairness to the homeowners in this area, the condition should be corrected.

"The correction of this condition will solve an unpleasant traffic problem now existing in the area."

Albert Derecola, the owner, with his wife Joanne, of the beauty shop, had one question: "Which homeowners besides Seidel?"

current year. Some $32,800 of the increase is caused by the fact that transportation costs will be borne for the first time next year by the joint district rather than by the individual boards.

Dr. Russell D. Sturgis, stepped down as jointure secretary, a position he has held since the jointure's inception in 1955. Elected to succeed him was Mrs. Marian L. Brown, a member of the Skippack board.

Frederick Wentz, Skippack, was elected treasurer.

basement operation, said they will defy the order even if it means their arrest.

Excerpts from the letter and postcards received by Knause follow:

"I do not know the Derecolas very well, but I do know they are hard working citizens that our community should be proud of. They have a lovely home—beautifully cared for—and certainly very much in keeping with the other homes in the neighborhood. It certainly does not seem 'fair' or 'just' to penalize these people for success. Is this democracy at work?"

"Being a neighbor of the Joanne Beauty shop, I just want it known that it does not bother me a bit having a beauty shop there."

"Just wish to inform you that I, as a neighbor, am against the charges being forced on the Sparky and Joanne Beauty shop."

I do hope that Joanne and Albert (Sparky) Derecola will be permitted to operate their beauty establishment at their present location. It is a great convenience for people living in this part of town."

* * *

"In my opinion you are doing a very wrong thing in trying to close Sparky and Joanne's shop. Why not hear them out before doing such a thing and putting these operators out of a job? Isn't there enough unemployment in town?"

* * *

"I understand they are trying to abolish the beauty shop of Joan and Sparky. I am an elderly widow and it is very handy for me to go there."

"I would like to add my voice to many others in defense of Joanne and Sparky's Beauty shop. These young people have worked diligently and through their own efforts have built up a successful, well-organized operation which is a credit to themselves, their community and to Pottstown.

"Unfortunately their success is the envy of many. There is no honest reason why they should be condemned and harassed because of their success!"

"Mr. Seidel (Borough Assessor Horace Y. Seidel who made the only complaint against the operation) should take care of his own job before he takes away someone elses!"

* * *

"Their property is always well-kept and very attractive, and in no way, to my mind, detracts from the neighborhood. They are fine people and they would certainly be an asset to any community."

"Please give them a fair break! It is a great convenience having the shop out of your business district."

* * *

"Now that Pottstown is forcing Joanne and Sparky to move, maybe they'll come to Phoenixville. We need them badly even if Pottstown doesn't."

Descendant of Prophet Mohammed Marries His English 'Dream Girl'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein, 25, a desert monarch and descendant of the prophet Mohammed, Thursday married his English commoner "dream girl."

In a private Moslem ceremony in the hilltop Zahran Palace, the young king and Miss Toni Averil Gardiner, 20, signed a wedding contract making her "Her Gracious Ladyship, Mona el Hussein (Hussein's Wish.)"

At the bride's side was her father, Lt. Col. Walter Percy Gardiner, British engineering adviser to Jordan's army.

Mufti Hamza al Arabi prayed "thanks to Allah" as the king and his bride, who has adopted the Islamic religion, signed the contract with Crown Prince Mohammed and Hussein's great uncle, Sherif Hussein bin Nasser.

Newsmen were barred from the ceremony, but palace sources said the bride followed the tradition of something old by carrying an antique handkerchief, something new with her dress, something borrowed with a hair clip from a friend, and something blue with a small bow sewed in the seam of her dress.

To the young king and his bride —who became a Moslem only a month and a half ago—the mufti read the prayer Al Satiheh, or the Moslem Lord's Prayer.

"In the name of Allah," he intoned, "the beneficent, the merciful praise be to Allah, lord of the world . . . show us these straight paths."

As the couple signed five parchment copies of the wedding pledge in Arabic, three cannon shots boomed over Amman. King Hussein took two plain gold bands from his pocket and the couple slipped them on and kissed.

For the signing, Mona wore a light blue linen dress and later changed to her cream-colored silk wedding dress.

The bride and groom said a quiet "nam," meaning yes, when asked if they took each other as man and wife.

At a later reception, a golden censer bowl from President Kennedy was presented to the couple. From Britain's Queen Elizabeth came a silver tea service.

There was no dowry in the wedding—a departure from Moslem custom.

The reaction of the average Moslem to the king's marriage was a mystery. Despite marching and music in the desert capital's streets, observers could not fail to note that only about 100 persons and a few soldiers stood outside the palace while their king was getting married.

The ceremony meant vast changes for the bride, a fresh-faced former switchboard operator who came to Jordan only 17 months ago. But it did not make her a queen.

She refused the royal title in a move seen as an attempt to soothe those of Hussein's 1.4 million Moslem subjects who would oppose being ruled by a British queen.

Hussein, who had worn his commander in chief's uniform with sword and head dress for a morning parade, changed to a business suit for the wedding. He said he wanted this rite free of the usual pomp and ceremony which mark most royal weddings.

This was his second marriage. In 1957 he divorced his first wife —the former Queen Dina who was of royal Hashemite birth—after the birth of his daughter, Princess Iliya.

Royal Family Expects Stork Visit

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret disclosed Thursday she is going to have a baby — and set Britain tingling with delight again over the girl who was always its gayest royal star.

The news was made known in a stiffly formal royal announcement which said Margaret is expecting her first child in the fall.

The disclosure came just over a year after her wedding at Westminster Abbey to Antony Armstrong-Jones—the commoner who went to take pictures at the palace and wound up as one of the family.

The baby will become fifth in line of succession to the throne, behind Margaret herself and the three children of her sister, Queen Elizabeth II. The princess will be 31 next Aug. 21. Armstrong-Jones is a few months older.

The announcement was issued from Kensington Palace, where the couple have their London home.

The press secretary to the royal household, Maj. John Griffin, said after the announcement: "Princess Margaret and her husband are delighted."

Armstrong-Jones was working at his office at the time, the London headquarters of the Council of Industrial Design where he is an adviser.

The British Broadcasting Corp. broke into its radio programs to report the news and messages of congratulation started pouring into the royal residence.

This is the way the news was proclaimed:

"It is announced from Kensington Palace that Princess Margaret is expecting her first child in the autumn and therefore will undertake no official engagements from today."

But word got around she may make an exception to the doctors' rule and attend the wedding of her cousin the Duke of Kent June 8.

Three eminent physicians—Lord Evans, Sir John Weir and Sir John Peel—have been named to attend the royal birth. All were at the birth of Queen Elizabeth's last baby, Prince Andrew, in February, 1960.

Margaret's baby will be born plain Armstrong-Jones, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said, since no title exists at present for the baby to inherit.

Under the British constitution, only the children and grandchildren of a sovereign are born a prince or princess. But one provision exempts from title claim the children of a sovereign's daughter.

NASA Pilot Achieves 3370 Miles an Hour in X15 Rocket Plane

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—A pilot rammed the X15 rocket plane to a record 3,370 miles an hour Thursday and said later it got unusually warm in the cockpit.

But Joe Walker added: "We could have gone faster."

By midsummer, he told newsmen the X15 should hit 4,000 m.p.h. and soar 50 miles or higher.

Walker's speed was 296 miles an hour faster than the mark for winged craft of 3,074 m.p.h. set April 21 by Air Force Maj. Bob White.

Walker, a pilot for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the unusual warmth indicated air friction was heating the plane to record temperatures. He increased the flow of nitrogen coolant through his pressure suit, however, and "was never actually uncomfortable."

Heat-sensing devices on the X15's skin have recorded as much as 700 degrees in previous flights. A space agency spokesman said he doubted the skin temperature rose much above that Thursday. A check of instruments later would give the exact figure.

Walker said he shut down his 57,000-pound thrust engine after 73 seconds. If he had kept it wide open for the full 80-second fuel limit he would have gone much faster.

A NASA spokesman called Walker "the first hypersonic aircraft pilot"—meaning he was the first to fly a winged vehicle five times the speed of sound.

U. S. astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. hit a speed of 5,100 m.p.h. on his 115-mile-high capsule ride May 5, and Soviet Yuri A. Gagarin reached 17,000 m.p.h. in his orbit around the earth April 12.

Both, however, were in bullet-like projectiles unable to control the direction of their missile-boosted craft.

Walker was in control all the way during his 13-minute flight, the longest yet made by an X15.

He dropped away from the B52 mother ship at a height of 45,000 feet near Tonopah, Nev., 200 miles northeast. Longest previous X15 flight was 160 miles and lasted 10 minutes.

Walker deliberately kept his altitude low Thursday, nosing over at 110,000 feet for the glide back to this desert test center 100 miles north of Los Angeles. The X15 has gone to 169,600 feet, a record set by Walker March 30.

ROYALTY VISITS CIRCUS — Princess Grace of Monaco, Prince Ranier, and their children, Prince Albert and Princess Caroline, attended their first circus in Philadelphia, when they were guests of Clyde Beatty (pointing far right), at a performance of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus. The royal family was vacationing at the home of Grace's mother, Mrs. John B. Kelly, in Philadelphia. The Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus will appear in Pottstown June 2 under the auspices of the Pottstown Junior Chamber of Commerce.

16th Annual Pilgrimage Draws 50 To Grave Of Mountain Mary

BALLY—Miss Sarah M. Gehman, Corr. Phone TI 5-2587, Tobias J. Minner Del., Phone TI 5-2551

About 50 devotees of "Mountain Mary" paid homage to her memory on the 16th annual pilgrimage to her grave, two miles north of Hill church at the farm of Kerlin and Grace Moyer, where she lived from about 1789 to 1819.

During this period this immigrant from Germany became widely known and beloved for her ministrations of mercy and intense piety and since her death has grown in stature until today she is the most honored character of her generation in Eastern Pennsylvania.

At the service the Rev. Edgar M. Cooper, pastor of the New Hanover Lutheran church stressed that as "grit in an oyster develops the pearl so hardship and adversity may have developed her sterling character." Mrs. Etta Rothermel, New Berlinville, and Winnie Glaser, gave a rendition of "Beyond the Sunset" and "In Thee Do I Live".

Recognition was given to Ammon Moyer and his brother Charles, for welcoming pilgrims and keeping the grave presentable from 1910 until 1945 when Kerlin and Grace Moyer took over, who have compassed the 21 acres and welcomed an increasing number of pilgrims with the aid of a divided group.

MRS. ELLEN NYCE, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Swartley, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Swartley and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Swartley Jr. and daughter all of Doylestown were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Ehst, South Church street.

The Rev. Elias W. Kulp is serving on a program at Elizabethtown.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Gehman and children Irene and David Gehman, Marilyn Nafziger and Lois Landis all of Main street motored to Harrisonburg, Va. to visit Ruth Gehman who is attending Eastern Mennonite college.

Irvin Eddinger, Mrs. Ella Kline, LeRoy Kline, Susan, Margery, Eileen and Kathleen Miller all of town visited Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Horvath in Allentown.

MR. AND MRS. Clarence Moyer and children East Greenville RD visited Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fellman, Wismers Corner, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Overholt, Ottsville.

The young peoples Bible meeting will be in the Old Hereford Mennonite church Sunday at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. Conrad Raker, superintendent of Good Shepherd home, Allentown, will be the guest speaker.

Twin Pastors Give Talks At MORA Meeting

The Rev. J. Paul Kehm, a former Pottstonian and pastor addressed more than 71 members of the Mora club Thursday afternoon in the YMCA.

Assisting the Rev. Kehm, was the Rev. Harry Kehm, a twin brother.

Together they gave a humorous talk on "present day conditions."

The Rev. J. Kehm, was pastor of St. Paul's United Church of Christ, Fleetwood, for the past 18 years. For nine years prior to that he was pastor of a Reformed church in Baltimore.

He was introduced by Harry Bernhardt, and William A. Barth president was in charge of the business meeting.

During the business session a brief case was presented to David Cooper, General secretary of the YMCA.

A poem was also read in his honor.

The mystery hand shaker gift was presented to Ray Carl.

BIBLE SCHOOL THEME TO BE 'OUR SAVIOR'

Brownback's Bethel Will Combine Sessions

CEMETERY BOARD SCHEDULES MEETING

BROWNBACK'S, SEVEN STARS AREA—Phone HY 5-6275, Lile McDonald, Del.. Phone Glenview 3-5219.

"Jesus, Our Savior" will be the theme of this year's Daily Vacation Bible School at Brownback's United Church of Christ, Spring City RD 1. The school will be a cooperative project of Brownback's and Bethel Methodist church, Spring City RD 1 from June 19 to 30 at Brownback's church. All registrations must be given to Mrs. William Copenhaver for Brownback's.

Brownback's softball team has begun playing in the season's games of the church fellowship softball league. This week they played Christ Episcopal at the Ridge fire company field, their home diamond and Pottstown Brethren at Schwab's Oil field.

Consistorymen will turn in completed work sheets to the pastor as soon as possible.

The Rev. Vernon E. Firme, pastor of the church, chose as his sermon topic "The Founding of His Church" for divine worship Sunday.

"THE FESTIVAL of Pentecost" was observed with the service of Holy Communion.

Men and young men of the church are asked to offer their assistance to members of the cemetery board by meeting at the church on Saturday, May 27 at 9 o'clock.

Celebrating their wedding anniversary recently were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Shepherd. They made a floral tribute at the church in honor of the occasion.

PASTOR BASES SERMON ON 'GLADNESS'

Serviceman Attends Parker Ford Service

"Gladness" was the title of a sermon preached by the Rev. Dr. Edward P. Brinkman at morning worship in Parker Ford Baptist church.

Kennedy Presents Package Plan Directing America To Greatness

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

President Kennedy has called the nation, "born of revolution and raised in freedom," to a war of attitudes as well as of money and physical power.

Gone is the Kennedy who spoke not so long ago of unwillingness among the people to pay his estimated price of victory.

The people, he says now, have responded. "It is heartening to know, as I journey abroad (to meet De Gaulle of France and Khrushchev of the Soviet Union), that our country is united in its commitment to freedom — and ready to do its duty."

Gone is the Kennedy who for a time confused even his well-wishers with his emphasis on domestic planning in a world where fires smouldered around the edges and threatened to set the whole structure ablaze.

Though sticking firmly to his concept of the imagine which America must present in the attainment of her potential greatness, the President's message Thursday finally achieved a packaging of those elements and those measures required "for a great positive adventure" into the search for human freedom.

Money wove its way throughout the message. Money for space, money for military strength, money—much more money—for the security of the people against possible bombing attacks. Money for economic and educational development not just of Americans, but for the human race.

Many foreigners, asked whether the United States can best spend her money on the dramatic space competition with Soviet Russia, on military preparedness of the non-Communist world, or on irrigation and health and economics, reply:

"The United States cannot choose. She must do everything."

That is what the President asked. But he also said:

"We stand for democratic revolution of social progress. We stand for diversity, honest disagreements and mutual respect," said the President.

"Whatever mankind must undertake, free men must fully share.

This is speaking not only of money, not only of rockets, not only of the presentation of an economic and social image in an appeal to the material senses of men; but also of attitudes, and of promise beyond materialism.

TV COMPANY IS ORDERED TO VACATE

Pottstown. Saylor is judge of the Philadelphia Orphans court.

The new lessee of the site, Saylor said Thursday, will be announced next week when lease agreements are signed.

MRS. ROBERT DORY, who operates the television repair shop with her husband, said they would relocate their business to 435 High street.

The Dorys have been at their present location two years. They began their television business at 350 North Franklin street. Dory has been a resident of Pottstown his entire life.

"It will not be too difficult for us to move," Mrs. Dory said. "We only have a small shop, and although the rent will be higher at the new location, it will be better situated. Here, we're off the main street.

"But I feel sorry for Dick (Lindauer). The parking lot is all he has. When that goes, he goes. You can't relocate a parking lot in Pottstown."

Standing outside the small store at the edge of his parking lot, where he sells flowers, fruit and vegetables in season "Dick" Lindauer looked around at his soon-to-be-abandoned parking lot and said:

"Yes — it will be different for me: I have no place to go; nothing to do. One of the borough councilmen once said the borough would control the private parking lots in Pottstown. Well, it has. Where am I going to move to?"

Lindauer has been at his present location for the past eight years. Nearly 24 years ago, he opened the first parking facility in Pottstown—a parking garage on North Charlotte street.

"I charged 25 cents for parking then," Lindauer said, "and I charge 25 cents for parking now. I haven't been allowed to raise it."

Lindauer recalled how he moved to the present site—which was then the Harold Saylor estate — after taking a survey among local businessmen to determine the need for a parking lot.

"They said 'By all means'," Lindauer said. "But when I opened there was only three cars on the lot, and for three years after that, it was nearly an empty lot. They simply found room at the meters."

WHEN LINDAUER first took over the lot from the demolished Saylor estate, he held a five year lease. This was renewed to a two year lease and finally to a one year lease, which has run out.

"But when this parking lot goes," he said, "There's going to be a lot of cars chased out into the street. I've been pretty full the past couple of months. People in other lots can't go in and out all day like they can here."

Lindauer has lived in Pottstown for 38 years and was local fire chief for 16 years. He lives at 366 Beech street, is married and has two children.

"It was funny," he said, "When people found out the property was going to be sold and I was moving out, I received 20 phone calls the first day — all wanting me to buy into their business. They must have thought I made money here."

Judge Saylor, who owns additional High street real estate, indicated the new client would erect a building, and the site would no longer be a parking lot.

Cambodia Prince Sees Little Hope For Laos Pact

GENEVA (AP) — The man who fathered the 14-nation conference on Laos said Thursday it now has only one chance in a thousand of succeeding.

This somber forecast came from Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, as he prepared to leave Geneva for medical treatment in the south of France. He told reporters he "might return in about two or three weeks, depending on the wishes of the doctors."

The stocky prince said he still hoped for settlement of the Laotian problem, but added that it was difficult to see how the present deadlocked conference could establish Laos as a peaceful, neutral nation until the rival Laotian factions themselves come together.

He sponsored efforts to unite the three rival Laotian groups — the pro-Western royal Laotian government headed by Premier Boun Oum, the so-called neutralists of Prince Souvanna Phouma and the Communist-led Pathet Lao. The efforts failed.

Unity moves in Geneva and in Laos likewise have failed thus far to produce results.

At the height of the Laotian civil war last winter, Sihanouk proposed the convening of the conference now assembled in Geneva. His proposal was taken up by Britain and the Soviet Union, acting as cochairmen.

Now he says gloomily that if the conference here fails there are but three possibilities: abandonment of Laos by the West, partition as in Korea, or war in Southeast Asia.

After two weeks the conference, its first-string negotiators gone, finds itself in an odd state of suspended animation. It has fixed no date for its next session, having only an understanding that the delegates will get together sometime before Monday.

The cochairmen—Britain's Malcolm MacDonald and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Georgi Pushkin—met Thursday to consider new instructions for the International Control Commission policing the shaky Laotian truce. They ran into a deadlock of their own. Conference sources said they "reached no agreement and this problem remains open."

The commission, composed of India, Canaaoland, has asked the cochairmen for new instructions in the light of difficulties involved in maintaining the truce in Laos.

Johnson's Trip To Southeast Asia Is Seen As Boost To U.S. Repute

By RELMAN MORIN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's trip to Southeast Asia boosted morale in this area.

Reflecting assurances of increased military and economic aid from the United States, American authorities in South Viet Nam and Thailand got down to work immediately to formulate specifics. Talks began in Bangkok and Saigon while Johnson was flying home.

Military details of the program cannot be disclosed in terms of types and amounts of new American weapons. In general, however, it is designed to modernize the arsenal in Thailand and in Saigon to make more men available — and specifically trained for action against Communist guerrillas.

Both countries are directly under the Communist gun. Their problems have been dangerously aggravated by developments in Laos which brought the Communist forces of North Viet Nam much closer to vital areas.

South Viet Nam's central area, formerly considered relatively secure, is already seeing increased activity by the Communist Vietcong. Similarly, the Thais report stepped-up Communist action in the northeast where they have a common border with Laos.

Reactions to Johnson's visit appear to have been uniformly good. Asian government officials say they had some reservations, at first. "We have had assurances and promises before," they tell you. "The question was what action the United States would take."

Implicit in this was the fact that, regardless of responsibility, Laos had been allowed to fall virtually under Communist military control.

These doubts have been largely resolved.

Johnson said in unequivocal terms that the United States would not permit Southeast Asia to fall under Communist domination.

The atmosphere in Viet Nam and Thailand is much brighter than it was last fall when this correspondent visited the two countries.

In Viet Nam, unquestionably, the Vietcong activity is stepping up and fast. Military authorities estimate there are perhaps double the number of Red guerrillas operating here now.

But steps are being taken to counter this by adding 20,000 men to the Vietnamese army, arming and training the paramilitary forces of militia in the villages, and by providing special counter-guerrilla training to the whole army.

A complete shift in the pattern of training and military operations is under way.

Some doubt still exists, not about the position of the Kennedy administration if a real emergency should arise, but about the attitude of Congress. Asian officials hope, but are not convinced, that Congress would back Kennedy all the way if anti-Communist countries should be subjected to an all-out attack from the north.

Princess Birgitta Is Married To Bavarian Prince

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Princess Birgitta, 24, of Sweden married Bavarian Prince Johann George of Hohenzollern Thursday as the roar of a 21-gun salute swept across flag-bedecked Stockholm.

A short civil ceremony in the royal palace's stately throne hall wed the princess, granddaughter of King Gustaf VI Adolf of Sweden, to the handsome history student.

The prince, 29, is a Roman Catholic, the princess a Lutheran. A Catholic ceremony will be held Tuesday in Sigmaringen, the prince's home town. Birgitta, who hopes to have at least four children, reportedly will raise them as Catholics.

Religion no longer is a burning issue in Sweden, but looking down on the civil ceremony Thursday was a large white marble statue of Sweden's warrior King Gustavus Adolphus, who led Protestant armies against the Catholic German emperor in the Thirty Years' War.

Birgitta, a 6-footer, entered the gaily decorated hall on the arm of her 6-foot-2 bridegroom. She wore a flowing white tulle dress and a tiara of cameos and pearls once worn by Napoleon's Empress Josephine, an ancestor of Sweden's reigning Bernadotte family.

Mayor Yngve Kristenson officiated before 750 guests who attended the five-minute ceremony in formal morning dress. No rings were exchanged.

Birgitta and the prince, who met 18 months ago, plan to live in the prince's bungalow in Munich, where he is studying for a doctor's degree in history.

Woman Tells of Trip Through South, West

Spring-Ford Golden Age club had its weekly meeting in Royersford American Legion home with 53 members attending. Mrs. Paul Baum, president, was in charge.

After opening with prayer by the chaplain, Walter B. Horning, and group singing, Mrs. Ella Keffer, Spring City, read poems. Mrs. Joseph Donohue gave a description of a trip which she and her husband had through the western and southern states. The group observed a moment of silence in memory of Benjamin F. Bertolet, Spring City, a member who died recently.

Cards and bingo were played, followed by refreshments. The program committee announced that M. Bertha Brower, Spring City, will attend next week to show slides of her European trip.

The Schwenksville Union district will be opened Monday, supervising principal Robert Cope announced Thursday.

The school will be closed Tuesday for Memorial Day and will reopen Wednesday.

More than half of all homicide victims are slain by firearms.

Veterans, Fire Companies Map Route For Twin Borough Memorial Parade

Twin-Borough veterans and fire companies will pay homage to departed comrades at the annual Memorial Day services Tuesday morning. Graves of deceased members also will be decorated over the weekend and before Memorial day.

In Royersford, a committee of members of Capt. Harris Buckwalter American Legion post, Royersford Post VFW, and the Humane and Friendship fire companies arranged for the annual parade to Fernwood cemetery and memorial services in the cemetery.

The parade is scheduled to leave at 9 a. m., from the Humane firehouse, Third avenue and Walnut street, marching on Third avenue to Main street, east on Main street to Seventh avenue, south on Sventh avenue to Walnut street and east on Walnut street to the cemetery. Business places and homes, especially along the route of parade, were asked to fly their U. S. flags.

The parade will be made up of the VFW and American Legion posts, their respective ladies groups, Friendship and Humane fire companies, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, headed by Spring-Ford Senior High school band. Burgess George W. Lee and Police Chief Bryson M. Turner are expected to be marshals, riding in the borough police car.

THE MEMORIAL address for the war veterans will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Franklin P. Watts, pastor of First United Church of Christ. Speaker for the firemen's memorial will be the Rev. Boyd M. Long, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene.

As in previous years, the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign wars posts will attend church services in groups Sunday morning. They will go this year to the United Church of Christ to hear the Rev. Dr. Watts. The service starts at 10:45 a. m.

In Spring City, the Walter T. Caffrey American Legion post and Liberty Fire company, with ladies' groups and Gold Star mothers will again join for the annual service in Zion's cemetery, accompanied by Spring-Ford Junior High school band.

The combined groups will form at 9:30 a. m., in front of Zion's Lutheran church and march into the adjoining cemetery for the service around the graveside of the late Pvt. Walter T. Caffrey.

SPEAKERS WILL be the Rev. Walter S. Johnston, pastor of Bethel Methodist church, for the war veterans, and the Rev. Harvey J. Fritz, who will speak at the service by Liberty Fire company.

The program will include the placing of a wreath on the grave of Pvt. Caffrey's mother by the Gold Star mothers, remarks by Clayton Shaner, commander of the Caffrey post, and by Burgess George F. H. Walters.

Participating groups will practice Sunday afternoon, when the ex-servicemen also will complete decorating graves of veterans in all area cemeteries.

Schwenksville Boy Scouts Compete In Relays, Camping Activities

SCHWENKSVILLE — Mrs. Roy C. Slaughter, Corr., Phone AT 7-9212, For Del., Thomas Hufnagle, Phone AT 7-3531.

Seventeen Scouts, members of Schwenksville Troop 105 and leaders, participated in the 1961 Neskenno District camporee, held over the weekend at Oaks. There were many competetive sports and activities including a water boiling contest, first aid relay, signaling relay, chariot race, four legged race, tug-o-war.

The order of the arrow ceremony was a feature of the lighting of the campfire Saturday evening with Fred Schlick acting as master of ceremonies. All precaution was taken for the safety of the boys and the Lansdale Medical Service Corps stood by for the entire weekend.

Attending were: Carl Moser, Jim Machain, Leonard Reed, Jr., Walter Newruck, Eddie Zilinski, Eddie Smith, David Long, David Johnson, Harry Doskicz, Thomas Dice, Jim Dice, Fred Gertzen, Paul Sacks, Charles Yerger, LeRoy Haas, Clifford Minford and Albert Witmayer; Larry Yerger, chairman troop committee; Albert Gamon, assistant scoutmaster and Leonard Reed Sr., scoutmaster. Reuben High assistant scoutmaster, visited Saturday morning.

The third annual out-door art show at "Tavistock" at Obelisk, co-sponsored by Dr. Fenton Russell and the Perkiomen Valley Art center, took place.

THE TAVISTOCK gold medal for the best of show in the professional group, was won by Carl Thorp, New Orleans, La. His painting was of the rocky coast line of Cape Ann, Mass., titled "Eastern Point Light House". Thorpe, born in Texas, spent most of his early years on the west coast, where he maintained a studio in San Francisco. The last three years he has been spending his time between New Orleans and New York.

Blue ribbon winners in the professional group were Elizabeth Davis Wolpert, Wolpert Galleries, Spring House. Her oil painting of a beach scene at Cape May N. J., titled "The Boardwalk" captured a ribbon and a floral still-life, executed with seeds, by Jinx Harris of Atlantic City, N.J. as well as a painting of Perkiomenville, during a blizzard won a blue ribbon.

The Tavistock Gold Medal for best of show in the Amateur Group was won by Doris Macomber, Spring Mount. It was done from her window and titled "Snow Scene of Spring Mount."

Blue ribbon winners in the amateur class were Mrs. Florence Schwenk, Schwenksvillle, Mildred Kriebel, Spring Mount, Sara Swartley, Hatfield.

Winner of the sketching competition of work completed at the scene, was Signa Feenie, Green Lane. Her subject was a carriage house and clothesline.

South Africa Is Edgy

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) —Government sources are refusing to give out names of nonwhites who have accepted or rejected invitations to the inaugural of the first president of the new South African Republic here next Wednesday. Edgy over the possibility of racial clashes at the birth of the white-dominated republic, they said publication of such names would not be in the public interest.

Home Missions Official Gives Notice of His Resignation

The Rev. Dr. Roy L. Winters, Spring City, who is executive secretary of the Home Missions of the Evangelical Lutheran Ministerium, announced his intention to retire at the 24th annual convention of the Ministerium Thursday at Buck Hill Falls. He will retire at the end of the year.

The Rev. Dr. Winters, 68, has been executive secretary for the past 15 years. During this time, 34 mission congregations were started.

Also on the last day of the Ministerium convention, the annual budget was adopted. The budget for the coming year will be $3,634,270. This amount is $20,000 above the proposed budget and $282,000 over last year's budget.

Of this increase, $252,000 is for work in the United Lutheran Church of America. Another $30,000 is for work within the synod.

PRINCIPAL speaker at the last-day session was the Rev. Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, director of the Commission of Churches in International Affairs.

Speaking before the Ministerium, the Rev. Dr. Nolde took exception to senators who suggested the United States break off attempted negotiations on nuclear disarmament and resume testing because of the apparent stalling tactics by Soviet Russia.

"The United States should not at this time resume nuclear weapon testing, nor should it set a deadline for resumption of tests if an agreement is not reached at the Geneva conference," he said.

At Geneva, the Rev. Dr. Nolde conferred with leaders of British, American and Soviet delegations.

He took exception to the Senators' remarks because he anticipated the problems of the nuclear test ban would be considered at the approaching conference between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev in Vienna.

HE EMPHASIZED four points in the strategy he believed should be followed:

1. The U.S. should not accept Soviet poposals for a three-part administration of a test ban, because it would project a veto into the treaty administration.

2. If the Soviet Union withdraws its demands for the three-part administration, the U.S. and the United Kingdom should be prepared to make adjustments of their position.

3. If the U.S. should resume nuclear testing, it should not do so in the field of nuclear weapons, but should limit itself to underground tests for peaceful use of research in improving methods of nuclear detection.

4. Whether or not the U.S. resumes testing, it should not withdraw from the conference table in Geneva.

"Fool-proof inspection is not possible," he said.

These four points represent the position of the World Council of Churches to the present nuclear disarmament negotiations, the Rev. Dr. Nolde indicated.

"Action along these lines represents an obligation to humanity," he said.

Aviation Safety Stressed At Meeting

"Aviation Safety Through Education" was the subject of a meeting of the Pottstown Aircraft Owners and Pilots incorporated, Thursday night at Lakeside Inn, Limerick.

Guest speaker was Ralph F. Nelson, director of the service department of Aircraft Owners and Pilots association in Washington, D. C. A new member, Edward Yarnall, was accepted at the meeting. Chairman Alvin E. Renninger, presided.

ABC Sees Arms Used By Gangs

Teenage gangs was the topic Thursday night at the meeting of the American Business club in the Elks home.

The speaker was Capt. Henry Brown, executive officer of the Juvenile Aid Division of the Philadelphia Police department.

Capt. Brown displayed some of the weapons used by gangs such as switchblades, brass knuckles, "zip-guns," and a black jack with tacks inserted.

Charles Park, president, was in charge of the meeting attended by 145 members.

HUGE BALLOON SATELLITE TESTED—This 135-foot rigidized inflatable balloon satellite is undergoing tensile stress tests in a dirigible hangar at Weeksville, N.C. The satellite, 50 times more rigid than Echo I, is expected to be placed into orbit as a passive communications experiment by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in 1962. When folded the satellite is packed into the 41-inch diameter cannister, near man in center foreground.

Navy Captain Claims Superiors Ordered Destruction Of Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veteran Navy captain said specifications and other data on a revolutionary type plane concept were destroyed last Fall on orders from his superiors.

Capt. Cooper B. Bright said the project — involving an inflatable plane that its backers claim would take off vertically from almost any kind of surface ship—was squelched because, he said, certain admirals feared it might threaten the future of carriers.

Bright, 52 and a Navy officer for 19 years, was in charge of the project. He has been ordered to San Francisco next month to become inspector of naval material —a job he regards as a dead end.

Figuring in the dispute are two senior admirals, both mentioned as possibilities for chief of naval operations. They are Adm. James Russell, now vice chief of naval operations, and Vice Adm. John T. Hayward, deputy chief of naval operations development. Both are aviators with carrier backgrounds.

The matter may become the subject of a congressional investigation.

Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., of the House Armed Services Committee and Rep. Jeffery Cohelan, D-Calif., a committee member, have written separate letters to Secretary of the Navy John B. Connally asking for an explanation.

Aides said Connally, who returned Tuesday night from Armed Forces Day speaking engagements, had not had a chance to see the congressmen's letters.

At issue is a proposal for development of a plane body, made of a fabric much like an automobile tire, which would be inflated and its turboprop engines and other gear installed. Its backers say it would fly at better than 325 miles an hour and have a 1,100-mile range.

Advocates of the idea say that where 80 metal planes now are stored on a big carrier, an estimated 1,000 of the fabric bodies could be stored in deflated condition, with their equipment nearby.

Bright said that in 1958 a study group was set up within the Navy and including people from the Goodyear Aircraft Co., which had experience in small inflatable plane construction. Goodyear was assigned the job of looking into the feasibility of building large craft for military use.

The Navy version is slightly different. It says it asked Goodyear to investigate the feasibility of the project and that "Goodyear made a study which they voluntarily gave to the Navy for consideration."

Bright was appointed the Navy's project officer. No Navy money was spent on it, except for the salaries of government personnel involved.

Last year, Bright and Hayward testified side by side before the House Space Committee and a House Appropriations subcommittee. They took directly opposite positions.

Hayward told the Appropriations subcommittee he had decided "not to go forward" with the project. He said, "I do not believe the state of the art . . . is such that I can make a tactical aircraft packaged. . . ."

However, he assured the subcommittee that 'I will certainly continue to look at it."

Bright argued the project "has the potential of revolutionizing the defense posture of the United States, greatly increasing our capabilities in both limited and nuclear war while affording substantial savings. . . ."

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee, recalled that the exchange between Bright and Hayward behind closed doors was "more heated than the record reveals."

Bright told a reporter that during this period he had stormy sessions with Russell in which, he said, the admiral told him to stop pushing the project.

Meanwhile, Bright was reassigned to the Navy's logistic war plans branch, where he is now serving as plans coordinator.

But he said he was given authority by his superior, Capt. Joseph Koenig, to continue work on the inflatable plane project in his off-duty hours.

The upshot, Bright said, was that last summer he and industry people scored what he called a breakthrough—they hit on what he said was a way to make the plane into an effective vertical take-off and landing craft.

Other Navy sources denied it was much of a breakthrough.

Bright said he took up the matter with Hayward and was told to pursue it, to draw up pamphlets, specifications and other promotional material.

But in mid-November last year, Bright said, orders came down through Koenig to destroy that material. At the same time, Bright said, he was told to talk to nobody about the matter.

Last February, the captain said, he was given permission to talk about the project during off-duty hours.

On April 11, Connally delivered a talk to a hall full of naval officers here, and said at one point:

"I call upon each of you to exercise your initiative, to move your ideas out into the open with boldness and courage."

Bright said this speech prompted him to prepare a special presentation on the vertical take-off inflatable plane project for Connally.

Three days after he submitted it, Bright said, he received a phone call telling him orders had been drawn up sending him to the San Francisco post.

Last week, the Navy was asked the present status of the project. It replied:

"The Navy carefully reviewed the project. From these studies and reviews it was concluded that the concept of an inflatable airframe did not lend itself to application in high performance aircraft carrying essential military equipment.

"It was determined that the supposed operational advantages are not technically realizable and it was decided not to pursue the project any further."

A Navy spokesman predicted Wednesday that the reactions to Bright's renewed espousal will not change this position markedly.

'Shocking' Waste Is Disclosed By House Checkup

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators called on the Pentagon to account for "unbelievably fantastic and shocking" practices in multibillion dollar purchases of spare parts and equipment.

Chairman Edward F. Hebert put that tag on the buying methods after he and an armed services subcommittee were guided by Comptroller General Joseph Campbell through what Hebert called "a wonderland of waste."

The subcommittee concentrated on spare parts, literally nuts, bolts and washers, in opening an inquiry into noncompetitive military buying from single sources.

Some of the items, for which the comptroller general testified the armed services had paid up to 400 per cent too much, were stapled to display boards flanking the committee.

Campbell cited a Navy purchase of two million little metal washers for two cents apiece. He said they could have been bought from the people who actually made them for less than one-half cent, tor a saving of more than $30,000.

Then there were 216,000 cotter pins that a firm bought for around one-half cent each and sold to the Navy for 16 cents each.

Campbell said his investigations revealed that military contracting officers generally had made little effort to develop competitive sources of supplies, because it easier to deal with a single source.

He also hit the military practice of negotiating "open contracts" under which defense agencies agree to "buy unknown quantities of unspecified parts . . . at prices that will be agreed upon after orders are placed."

Under that practice, Campbell said the army bought 19,000 'arrow" gadgets to anchor aircraft to the ground at $1.25 each. During the same period the Air Force paid only 24 cents apiece for several thousand arrows after advertising for bids.

Campbell credited an accident for an Air Force saving of $25,000 in the purchase of kits to repair propellers. Warner - Robins Air Materiel area, the comptroller general said, planned to place the order with a single firm. "Inadvertently," however, somebody in the purchasing office sent the proposal out to 11 companies, he said. The result was a price of $31.79 compared with the intended single supplier's quotation of $72.15.

Monroe Surgery Called Successful

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Actress Marilyn Monroe underwent what was described as minor surgery Thursday at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said the operation was successful and that Miss Monroe probably would go home Friday. She was admitted Wednesday.

Details of the surgery were not disclosed.

Steelworkers Burn To Death In Auto Crash

COATESVILLE, (AP)—Two Lukens Steel workers enroute home after working a night shift were burned to death Thursday when their car crashed and burst into flames about two miles west of West Chester.

Samuel W. Roberts, 23, and Frank E. Cochran, 25, both of Coatesville, were identified from cards and by relatives. State police said the bodies were burned almost beyond recognition. The two visited West Chester after finishing work at Lukens, and were headed home when the accident occurred.

Police said the car struck a bridge rail, whirled out of control for more than 200 feet, struck a tree and burst into flames. John Joyce Jr., a postal employe, sighted the flaming vehicle and notified police and fire officials. He said flames shot 40 feet into the air.

Suit Is Filed

Helen C. Hektor, Bechtelsville RD 1, filed for damages in the Berks county court against George Garris, Baltimore. The suit is for $177.43, representing repairs to a station wagon.

The litigation involves a motor vehicle collision the past June 18, on the Bechtelsville-Landis Store road. Attorney George R. Eves represents the plaintiff.

Routes Are Mapped

An Alabama National Guardsman stands across the street from the home of Rev. Ralph Abernathy in Montgomery as "Freedom Riders" met there to announce plans for new integrated trips through the South. At right (top to bottom) Abernathy, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and John Lewis, a 21 year old student who wears a patch over a head injury suffered in a bus station attack, tell newsmen that the rides will continue with or without Federal protection.

Congress Applauds Kennedy's Request For Additional Effort on Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy solemnly asked Americans Thursday to shoulder new multibillion-dollar burdens to conquer space and prevent communism from capturing the emerging nations on this globe.

In an extraordinary State of the Union message, delivered in person to an applauding Congress, Kennedy said the nation must aim to land a man on the moon this decade. He said it must speed work on the Rover nuclear rocket which some day may help explore "the very ends of the solar system."

And he called for:

—A stepup in foreign aid.

—A tripling of funds for nuclear fallout shelters and other protective measures.

—Revamping and strengthening of military forces, especially their ability to fight brush-type battles or guerrilla warfare.

—More money for propaganda broadcasts.

—A new drive for disarmament.

—A new program to retrain Americans left jobless by automation.

The price of all this he set at $1.5 billion in the coming fiscal year; many more billions later. For example, he said the speeded-up space drive will cost an additional $7 to $9 billion over the next five years and will go on for many years. But he said, in an impromptu addition to his prepared text, this effort "may hold the key to our future on earth."

Kennedy asked no new taxes. In fact, he took the position that his "very urgent requests" could be met "without a budget deficit if our economy moves ahead."

The occasion was extraordinary in that it was the second State of the Union message of the year; usually there is only one. The White House explained that Kennedy decided to deliver it in person because of his sense of urgent needs.

There also was some talk that the administration wanted to make a new start, as it were; to revive spirits dampened by the Cuban invasion fiasco.

The President made no mention of that upset, except indirectly. He said:

1. "Any initiative carries with it the risk of temporary defeat."

2. "Our whole intelligence effort must be reviewed, and its coordination with other elements of policy assured."

Clad in gray business suit, white shirt and blue tie with silver stripes, Kennedy strode to the podium in the House chamber to deliver his speech before assembled senators and representatives.

Cabinet members and foreign diplomats were there and members of the Kennedy family — though not Mrs. Kennedy — listened closely from the presidential gallery.

Kennedy punctuated his delivery with the familiar gentle chopping motions of the hand. The speech turned out to be a cut-down version of the text given to newsmen in advance.

The text totalled some 5,500 words but somebody, perhaps the President himself, edited out before delivery whole sentences and paragraphs, totalling 1,200 words and including the pledge of no new taxes.

However, the White House said Kennedy stood by it all and the whole text would go into the record.

Even so, it took Kennedy three-quarters of an hour to deliver the speech, which was broadcast nationally by radio and TV networks.

The President was interrupted 17 times by applause, notably when he proclaimed that the economy is looking up.

"The recession has been halted. Recovery is under way," he said.

Kennedy began by staking out the area of the earth where he believes a crucial struggle with communism will be won or lost.

"The great battleground for the defense and expansion of freedom today," he said, "is the whole southern half of the globe—Asia, Latin America, Africa and the Middle East—the lands of the rising people."

He called their revolution the greatest in human history—seeking "an end to injustice, tyranny and exploitation."

The Communists did not create this revolution, he said, "but they are seeking to ride the crest of its wave—to capture it for themselves."

But this nation also, he continued, "was born of revolution and raised in freedom" and "we do not intend to leave an open road to despotism."

To sustain new efforts in world affairs and space, he said, the nation's economy must be "growing, prosperous." Though recovery is under way, unemployment is "a major social evil," he went on.

Hence, he said, "I am transmitting to the Congress a new manpower development and training program, to train or retrain several hundred thousand workers in new occupational skills over a four-year period, in order to replace those skills made obsolete by automation and industrial change with the new skills which new processes demand."

ECONOMIC AID ABROAD — A $250-million increase, bringing the total for the fiscal year beginning July 1 to $2.65 billion. If we do not extend aid, he said, "the bankruptcy of unstable governments and unfulfilled hopes will surely lead to a series of totalitarian receiverships."

MILITARY AID ABROAD — A $285-million increase over previous requests of $1.6 billion. "We cannot merely state our opposition to totalitarian advance without paying the price of helping those under the greatest pressure," he said.

CIVIL DEFENSE — A tripling of funds for fallout shelters, warning measures, stockpiles of food, medicines, etc. The cost in the next fiscal year would be about $312 million. The secretary of defense is being given command of civil defense. The present Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization will be cut to a small planning group and renamed the Office of Emergency Planning.

SPACE — For the coming year $679 million additional to work on the moon project, hasten development of the nuclear space rocket, speed up the use of satellites for world communications and weather observation.

ARMY — Sweeping reorganization of the divisional setup, to strengthen its non-nuclear firepower, improve mobility and provide modern mechanized divisions and new airborne brigades in the Pacific and Europe. Plans are being worked out so that, in emergency, Army manpower could be nearly doubled in less than two months.

MARINES—An increase of manpower from 170,000 to 190,000, to increase the Marine Corps' "already formidable ability."

BRUSH FIRE FORCES—"Our special forces and unconventional warfare units will be increased and reoriented."

U. S. INFORMATION AGENCY —Broadcasts to Latin America and Southeast Asia will be stepped up. In Latin America, Spanish and Portuguese broadcasts will be increased from 42 to 154 hours a week. At present "Communist China alone does more public information broadcasting in our own hemisphere than we do."

ECONOMIC GROWTH — The lending ability of the Small Business Administration should be increased. The federal government can help cut the cost of home mortgages. A general easing of credit is desirable.

In an interpolation, Kennedy acknowledged that he proposed a "heavy burden." But he said he was convinced this is "a most serious time in the life of the country, in the life of freedom around the globe."

And in a long paragraph near the end, he summed up his view of what American citizens can do to help:

"Finally," he said, "our greatest asset in this struggle is the American people — their willingness to pay the price for these programs—to understand and accept a long struggle—to share their resources with other less fortunate peoples—to meet the tax levels and close the tax loopholes I have requested—to exercise self-restraint instead of pushing up wages or prices, or overproducing certain crops, or spreading military secrets, or urging unessential expenditures or improper monopolies or harmful work stoppages—to serve in the Peace Corps or the armed services or the federal civil service or the Congress—to strive for excellence in their schools, in their cities and in their physical fitness and that of their children—to take part in civil defense—to pay higher postal rates, higher payroll taxes and higher teachers' salaries, in order to strengthen our society—to show friendship to students and visitors from other lands—and, finally, to practice democracy at home, in all states, with all races, to respect each other and to protect the constitutional rights of all citizens."

Kennedy Education Bill Is Passed by U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday night passed President Kennedy's $2.55-billion program of grants for public grade and high schools over a three-year period.

The vote was 49-34.

This is the fourth federal aid to education bill to pass the Senate since 1948. Its backers believe it has a good chance to become law this year.

The measure goes to the House which may start debate on the legislation in about 10 days.

The House Education and Labor Committee Wednesday approved a measure quite similar to the Senate version. Nevertheless, the fight in that body is expected to be much closer than in the Senate.

The bill authorizes $850 million a year in federal grants to the states for the three years starting July 1. The money could be used for teachers' salaries, school building construction, or general operating expenses such as bus transportation, textbooks, clerical service, and libraries.

There is no matching requirement by the states. But a provision of the bill does require the states to keep up their current level of school effort, or forfeit part of the U.S. money.

In addition to containing the new grant program, the bill continues without change for three more years the 11-year-old system of payments to school districts with enrollments swollen because of nearby federal installations.

Kennedy had recommended these payments eventually be cut in half. But the Senate Labor Committee rejected this recommendation in drafting the bill.

It is estimated these payments will total $310 million dollars in the fiscal year starting July 1.

Passage came at the end of a long day of debate, most of it taken up by senators opposed to the bill.

The school legislation is designed to equalize educational opportunity over the country by helping in particular the children in districts with low financial resources.

The grants would be paid on a sliding scale equalization formula, with the poorest state getting three times as much as the richest on a per pupil basis.

The relative wealth would be determined by the personal income for each child of school age in each state. School age is defined as 5 through 17 years.

The largest grants in each year would be $57,967,084 for Texas, the smallest $1,038,379 for Nevada. The largest per pupil allotment would be $27.74 for Arkansas, Mississippi and South Carolina, the smallest $9.25 for Connecticut.

In the eight days of debate on the legislation, all amendments opposed by Kennedy were defeated handily.

Administration forces were particularly anxious to keep out any civil rights or religious school riders, and five of these were defeated. Backers of the bill feared adoption of any of these would alienate some senators and kill the measure.

However, sponsors of the legislation made pledges to Catholics and other church school groups that a later bill—the extension of the National Defense Education Act — would contain aid for private schools.

On the school desegregation issue, Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff offered assurances to Southerners by writing a letter stating the bill would give him no authority to withhold school grants from any state.

Sens. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, were among those who voiced opposition to the bill.

Pardon Board Is Asked To Reduce Sentence

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — The State Board of Pardons Thursday was asked to commute the two-to-four year prison sentence of Thomas J. Evans, 77 year old former chairman of the State Turnpike commission.

Evans, confined to a Harrisburg hospital since March, was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the Commonwealth of $19½ million. He suffers from asthma.

Evans, who went to Dauphin county prison last January, was one of four men convicted on charges which grew out of construction of the turnpike's northeast extension in 1954.

His attorney asked the pardons board to release him from custody immediately. Atty. H. G. Stutzman of Pottsville said that Evans' wife, also 77, cannot leave her Coaldale home unless assisted.

"Evans ought to be at home with his wife every day," Stutzman said.

The board took the case under advisement.

Fire Hits Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP)—The worst fire in Singapore's history razed four square miles of wooden shacks in the suburbs Thursday, leaving more than 4,000 homeless. One person perished and 34 were hurt. Most of the residents of the shantytown are Chinese.

Salvation Army Shows Film on Congo Crusade

"Congo Crusade," a film on the Salvation Army's work in the Belgian Congo, highlighted open house Thursday at the Salvation Army citadel, 137 King street. The film was shown at 8 p. m.

Brigadier Paul White said the film was made by Commissioner Holland French on his visit to the African nation the past year. It depicted the advances made by the Salvation Army after 25 years work in the Congo area.

Thursday's open house, from 2 to 8 p. m., was part of a week long celebration marking Salvation Army week, ending Sunday.

Sunday's festivities will include addresses by Captain and Mrs. Lloyd Scott, of the Philadelphia headquarters. They will speak at 11 a. m. services.

Your Horoscope

The Stars Say—By ESTRELLITA

For Today

STARS NOW favor routine matters rather than new enterprises. Stick to matters with which you are familiar, and protect present assets instead of trying to increase them through speculation. Don't try to mix business with pleasure, either.

For the Birthday

If today is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that, within a week, you will enter a splendid month-long financial period, provided that you don't offset it through such follies as extravagance and speculation. It will be important to remember this since, except for brief periods in late August, mid-December and mid-February of 1962, your chart shows no outstanding gains where monetary matters are concerned. Strive, then, to plan ahead and balance your budget carefully. In this way, you can wind up this new year in your life "in the black."

Where your personal life is concerned, planetary influences are more interesting.

Home and family affairs will be under really grand aspects and, where romance is concerned, look for some interesting developments during August, early September, late October, December and next March. Incidentally, if any of you have been married during the past two weeks, your marriage should prove an exceptionally happy one, since this, too, was a most propitious period for both romance and marriage.

Generous influences govern travel during July, also in October. Look for excellent opportunities, job-wise, in October, December and next April.

A child born on this day will be so highly sensitive that even the slightest criticism may cause untold heartache. This tendency should be curbed from early childhood.

Four Generations Honor Woman On 90th Birthday

GLEN MOORE—Mrs. Walter Ford, Corr., Phone WH 2-2752.

A party was conducted in honor of Mrs. Lizzie H. Piersol, of Downingtown RD on her 90th birthday at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin D. Furlong, Glen Moore.

Of her family of six children, five members and their families were present. They were: Mr. and Mrs. Lester Piersol, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Piersol, Mrs. Ruth A. Piersol, Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCausland; grandchilren, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin R. Furlong, Donald Furlong, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Glauner, Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Piersol, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Piersol, Alan McCausland, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Lammey, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Piersol, Barry and Joan Piersol.

Great-grandchildren: Thomas and Kenny Furlong, Sandy, Diane and Russell Piersol, Larry, Carol and Davie Piersol, Tommy Plank, Barbie, Sandy and Linda Lammey, Mark, Scott and Beth Piersol, Betty Lou and Paul Young Sr.

Great-great-grandchildren: Paul M. and Carl Andrew Young.

Nieces of the guest of honor included: Mrs. Ora Christman, Mrs. Laura Christman, Mrs. Sara Reitenauer and friends, Mrs. Irene Mayberry, Mrs. Grace Carl, Spring City.

Also, Harriet A. Furlong, Paul Burkholder, the Rev. and Mrs. Leonard Bjorkman, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Furlong.

Youths Charged With Burglary

Two area youths were charged with burglary and larceny before Justice of the Peace Earl R. Keim, Boyertown, and held under $2500 bail each.

Henry Weller, of Bechtelsville and Robert Faust, Gilbertsville, both 18, were accused of a series of Boyertown area burglaries committed on April 19 and Feb. 6. District Attorney Frederick Brubaker, Berks county, said Weller signed an indictment and will appear before sentence court.

Brubaker said the information filed in the indictment indicates Weller was involved in most of the crimes, and Faust in about half of them.

Among the victims were: Zimmer's Feed Mill, incorporated, Boyertown; Heydt Chevrolet incorporated, Boyertown; Colebrookdale township Elementary school; Old Colebrookdale township Elementary school; Earl township Elementary school; Geho and Son Feed Mill Barto; and Quigley Motors, Boyertown. Loot amounting to $204 was taken from Heydt Chevrolet incorporated.

State Trooper Donald W. Holloway, Reading barracks, is the prosecutor in the cases. State police Det. Sgt. Leroy H. Lilley, Reading, and Boyertown Police Chief Henry E. Groff also participated in the investigation.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING

Girl Scout Staff Advisor Addresses Pottstown Council on Trip to India

Naomi Bastuscheck, staff advisor to volunteer personnel and training committee of Chester County Council of Girl scouts, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Pottstown council at Trinity Reformed United Church of Christ.

The speaker was an exchange trainer to India during last year.

She told of the scouting groups in India; the Bharat guides, ages 11 to 15 years; the Bulbuls, ages seven to ten and the Rangers, ages 16 to 25 years.

Promises and laws are the same as in this country she said and their uniform color is blue. Leaders are all teachers or office workers. Other women are not considered capable.

Their leaders receive a 12 day training course which is compulsory and meetings are held outdoors.

She described the crafts as "excellent" and told of the baskets made by the seven year olds. Their greeting is different, instead they say "num stay" which translated means, "peace be with you." This is used for hello and goodbye.

The people of India are quite friendly and the cities are modern. Many people do not eat meat as animals are sacred. They do not use pocketbooks made of leather.

The woman's dress in the sari. Men dress in the Western style. The color is much like that of the Amish people.

Miss Bastuscheck showed slides depicting the scouts, schools and homes.

She displayed articles given to her by the Indian people which include leis, a different type for each part of the country.

Traveling by train is slow, she concluded.

Mrs. Russell Geiger, program chairman, announced the following events.

The Brownie pow wow day is June 3 and Intermediate outdoor day will be June 10 at Forrest Glen. The co-ed car washing is slated for June 17th and the co-ed weekend at Camp Delmont will be Sept. 15 to Sept. 17. The first 20 persons registered may attend the weekend.

Mrs. N. Egelston reported on the conference at Baltimore, Md., where topics concerning leaders and programs in scouting were discussed.

Attending the conference were: Mrs. Donald Keim, Mrs. H. Diffenderfer and Mrs. J. Renninger.

The final cookie report was given as 32, 184 boxes of cookies sold. Top sellers were: Lucetta Moyer, troop 63, 213 boxes; Phyllis Ann Swartz, troop 39, 190 boxes; Linda Renninger, troop 1, 173 boxes; Marcia Berkert, troop 25, 165 boxes. All cookie profits will be used at camp.

Mrs. Robert Bittle, training chairman, gave a questionnaire to all leaders concerning what kind of training they would like.

The public relations is setting up a council wide excursion in connection with the Heritage trail either to Gettysburg or the Amish country. The event will take place in September.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schorman, Duke Center, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Ann, to William E. Schmearer 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Elwood Schmearer, 123 East Third street. Miss Schorman will be graduated from Indiana State college, Indiana, on Sunday. Mr. Schmearer, a graduate of the same school, is choral director of the Connellsville Junior High school. An August wedding is planned.

Also attending were: Mrs. Mark Collins, chairman of the board of directors and Mrs. John Maloney.

Quick Dressing Made Easy With Organized Closet

Are you a dressup-dawdler, unable to decide at the last moment what to wear and ransacking dresser drawers meanwhile for inspiration? Or are you a closet-scuttler, trying on one wrong dress after another while your patient escort waits in vain?

Relax! Try this organized, beforehand approach to dressing in a hurry.

First choose your standby dress with care, see that it fits and keep it in a special closet bag—ready to go. Then, assemble everything that goes with it in a box on the closet shelf, also ready for action.

For example, for a black and white silk print dress, the accessory box could hold ready black-and-white costume earrings and bracelets, a patent leather bag, long white gloves, party-pumps (possibly of printed silk), shadow-sheer hosiery and a pretty half-slip, the right length and silhouette for the dress—and, perhaps, a special shade of lipstick.

Bridal Surprise Given As Surprise For Judy Ziegler

Judy Ziegler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ziegler, Trappe, was feted at a surprise bridal shower by Mrs. Nicholas Kessler, Audubon.

Mrs. Robert Deger, Mrs. Joseph Sharkey, Mrs. William Hess, Mrs. J. Foley, Mrs. Fred Lusch, Helen Katein, Susan Zeigler, Margaret and Arlene Hess and Terry Highley.

Art Class Fetes Wife of Pastor At Housewarming

An art class that meets weekly in the Grace Lutheran church parish house had a surprise housewarming for the pastor's wife, Mrs. Richard G. Hoffert.

The Hofferts recently moved into their new home adjacent to the church parking lot on Charlotte street.

The group presented Mrs. Hoffert with an antique pot bellied stove, the fire door and top filled with carnations, and an original painting.

Mrs. Jack Ritter, class teacher, painted the bowl in the still life and each pupil painted in a flower.

The women took with them covered dishes for a noon luncheon. After the meal they went to the parish house for the last class of the season.

Attending were Mrs. Ritter, Mrs. Mary Rhoads, Mrs. Grace Edwards, Mrs. Honore Marie Wagner, all of Reading; Mrs. Ann Kirsch, Allentown; Mrs. Phyllis Wolf, Mrs. Helen Hoover, Mrs. Jeanne Gutman, Mrs. Ann Shutt, Mrs. Jackie Ayres and Mrs. Margaret Seivard.

Mrs. Esther Impink and Mrs. Barbara Lieb wee unable to attend.

Economy Minded Cooks Make Use Of Celery Price Reduction in Meals

There is a surplus crop of celery in South Florida fields which means celery should be lower in price for a while.

Economy minded housewives may wish to take advantage of this vegetable bargain by serving celery in a number of ways. Celery is a good buy, nutritionwise because of its high vitamin, protein and mineral content. Its calorie count is low, only ten to a half a cup.

CREAM OF CELERY SOUP

Take trimmings from a stalk of celery and chop finely together with a small onion. Braise with a little water and a tablespoon or so of butter. When celery and onion are transparent, sprinkle with a handful of flour and mix well. Cook slowly and covered for ten minutes. Pour in a pint of white stock and bring to a boil. Cook 15 minutes more.

Strain, removing bits of celery and onion. Pour in an equal quantity of milk. Return to heat but do not boil. Season with salt and pepper and a dash of worcestershire sauce. Add a few of the small stem pieces of celery. Makes about a quart.

Aunt Tilly having a birthday party? Uncle Harry getting a medal? Telephone The Mercury with the news and you may be awarded part of $10 given weekly in a news tip contest.

CELERY BORDELAISE

Clean and cut celery stalks into three inch lengths. Cook in a small amount of water for five minutes. Then briase celery in brown gravy or drippings from a beef roast until soft. Add some marrow from a beef bone. Place in a moderate oven for about ten minutes.

CREAMED CELERY

Clean and cut celery stalks into one inch lengths. Boil in a small amount of water until soft. Strain and mix with a cream sauce. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

STUFFED CELERY

Clean tender heart stalks of celery very thoroughly. Cream together equal parts of roquefort and cream cheese. Stuff celery hearts.

CELERY MAYONNAISE

Dice one half cup celery and one quarter cup apple finely. Mix with mayonnaise. Use as dressing on congealed salads.

CELERY STUFFING

Use your favorite basic stuffing recipe, then add half as much chopped celery as stuffing by volume.

ESSENCE OF CELERY

Use good rich chicken stock. Add plenty of chopped celery trimmings. Simmer ten to 15 minutes. Strain and serve for soup course.

CELERY ASPIC

Take one quart essence of celery and add two ounces of plain gelatin. Simmer for five minutes. Pour into mold and cool. Put in refrigeratorm to jell.

FRIED CELERY

Clean and cut stalk of celery into three inch lengths. Cook in a little water until soft. Cool. Dip piece in beaten egg then dredge with bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat until golden brown.

DOROTHY SIMONS

THE most exciting thing you can do this weekend is visit Pottstown's newest and prettiest fashion center! You are welcome whether to shop or to look around. The home itself is most interesting because it has been decorated and furnished in the lovely elegance of the period in which it was built. There are no commercial "eyesores", and even the dress racks have an old-fashioned look! The color theme carried out throughout the home is gold and white. There's a Bridal Salon with three private fitting rooms, a Trousseau Room with fashions for daytime, exciting advanced styles, a Casual Shop with sportswear and separates for leisure time, and the famous Gold Room where you find those stunning fashions for after five. Visit the warm, friendly home of HOLLAND-MORITZ, 524 High street, soon as you can! Holland-Moritz is a fashion personality collecting clothes for you that are the most advanced and tasteful from many fine fashion houses. A Holland-Moritz dress, suit or cocktail gown is never just pretty, or nice — it must be outstandingly beautiful, stunning, an unqualified smash! The only "problem" when finding fashions at Holland-Moritz is selecting from the many styles you will fall in love with! Their size range is complete, the price range includes your most lavish moments as well as those times when you want to spend "less than twenty dollars!" In the Gold Room there are many originals in lush fabrics, fabulous styles. When you prefer something in an elegant mood this is the collection to see! When you need something for looking particularly chic in the daytime you should visit the Trousseau Shop (these dresses are collected) because they are special enough to take on a honeymoon —think how they will enhance your wardrobe!) You will want to wear your Holland Moritz fashions forever!

This week while I was washing my windows I decided to count them! There are thirty-two! Believe it or not I have all shapes and sizes, high windows, short ones, double windows and small ones. Washing them was no fun, but I did have fun deciding on curtains and drapes to fit in with the color scheme and decor of each room. I found my drapes and curtains downstairs at the

NEW YORK STORE, High at Penn. This curtain and drape department is superior to any I have visited in big city department stores. Whether it's a curtain for the boy's bedroom, for a formal dining room, a powder room, a frilly girl's room, a kitchen or a recreation room, The New York Store has the right size, the right color or print, in the fabric you want. There's no need to shop elsewhere! I made some very unusual requests, colors had to exactly match the orange touch in a wall paper, or a stripe to include certain tones of gold and green — whatever the request, I was never disappointed. There are privincial prints, modern abstract patterns, stripes, floral prints, and solids in Jaquard weaves, polished cotton, antique satin, nubby boucle, and sheers, dacron, acetates and fiberglass. Every room in my home has curtains or drapes with a "custom made look" all because of The New York Store! Incidentally they have drapes and curtains than range in price form $1.79 a pair to $48 and higher. I'd like to say that for some windows I used inexpensive drapes, and they look just lovely, so there's no need to spend a great deal of money! The New York Store has the largest selection in the entire area, and it's nice to shop there because it's a friendly store. (P. S. isn't it convenient to use your charge?)

If you are planning to entertain this weekend or over Memorial Day holiday, plan to do it the easy way! You can set a lovely table, and throw all the tableware away when the meal is over! I found a most delightful group of coordinating tableware at

SMITH'S STATIONERY STORE, located in the Arcade Building at High and Charlotte street. They have coordinated sets in fabulous prints and colors and all are available in tablecloths, plates, cups, coasters, napkins, and dessert plates. I particularly like a group of striped design. There is green and white, black with silver and white, red with gold and white, and pink with silver and white. All items can be had in either the stripe or the solid colors. Match them or mix them for a variety of effects! Other patterns include a bar-b-que print, an oriental design, a sea scene, and many floral prints. You'll find just the right style to suit your taste at Smith's Stationery Store! There is a complete line of plastic coated plates and cups that have a luxurious "china" look, and they are so nice to use. Shop at Smith's for picnic needs all through the Spring and Summer.

Give a lasting gift to the graduate. Something that he or she will keep for a lifetime, will always remind them of graduation — and you! It need not be expensive, but an item of jewelry such as a strand of pearls, a birthstone ring, a watch, or a good jewel case from

JOSEPH W. MOYER'S JEWELRY AND GIFT SHOP, located at 24 North Charlotte street, will be always remembered. Stop at the store and see their large collection of gift ideas for the girl or boy graduate. When you see exactly the right gift, you will be delighted to notice that the price tag is exactly right, too! Joseph W. Moyer also has a selection of Scarab jewelry which includes bracelets, earrings, pins, rings, watch bands, and neckiaces. Perhaps you were thinking of costume jewelry? Joseph W. Moyer's array of fashions by Trifari are styled to be worn and loved forever! Prices begin at about $2 per item, and all types of matched sets can be made up to suit your individual pocketbook! If the graduate goes off to college, there are appropriate gifts for him or her. If the graduate expects to be married soon, the selection might include tableware, silver or anything for the home! If the graduate has chosen a special field, find something to fit in with the plans for the future, such as a special nurse's watch, or a fine man's toiletry kit. Joseph W. Moyer gift wraps beautifully, and without charge!

When you prepare food and serve it to your family, don't you enjoy knowing that they eat the finest? Every home maker takes great pride in her ability to cook, and we all love to see our food disappear and the happy smiles around the table! When it comes to fish and seafood, it's to important to buy fine quality and freshness! That's why the only place to shop is

CHARLES TORNABENE'S FISH MARKET, located at the entrance to the Farmer's Market on South Charlotte street, just a few steps off High. This is the shop where freshness and quality are GUARANTEED. There's no need to guess, no need to worry—Charles Tornabene only sells the finest and that's that! Select from a large variety of delicious types of fish and seafood. Everything is reasonably priced, and since there is less waste you save money. I particularly like their fresh fillet of fish which is breaded and ready to pop into the fry pan or broiler for a few minutes until it is golden brown. This tender, moist, delicious fish cannot be compared to the frozen type! Tornabene's have tasty shrimp salad, crab salad and potato salad which is ready for you to serve. Their attractive immaculate shop is open Tuesday through Saturday for your shopping convenience. Shop there frequently and add new sparkle to your weekly menu!

Simplicity is always a sign of good taste. Whether it's a stunning new tailored suit, an exquisite strand of pearls, a handsome sterling silver candelabra — classic lines of simplicity are timeless in their beauty. It's true with a hair style too, simplicity is good taste, simplicity is always flattering. The most difficult look to achieve is the "Vital Look of 1961," because it is perfectly shaped, expertly created. At

THE FIFTH AVENUE beauty salon the Vital Look that is so very new, has been most successful among fashionable women.

Mr. Gross Painter, owner, has a staff of nine operators who constantly take courses, attend meetings, study latest publications from Europe and see every show in the East. In this way they are able to offer you the newest, most skillful stylings in the nation. You will enjoy a visit to this beautiful shop located at 27 North Hanover street. The decore is modern and tasteful with every convenience for your comfort. There is an intercom system which pipes soft, lovely background music to every corner of the shop. There is a special room for women who want hair coloring done so that they have complete privacy, and they can relax in a more casual atmosphere. The Fifth Avenue has created a new type of fashionable woman in the Pottstown area! She is fashionable from toes to her elegant coiffure, because A Fifth Avenue Girl knows that a hair style that is "old fashioned" will spoil her entire appearance. At this fine shop you are pampered with personal attention, the use of the most expensive solutions and products, and the most beautiful surroundings imaginable. Telephone FA 6-4110 for your convenient appointment, there's no need to wait at Fifth Avenue. I know you will be happier with your appearance when you visit this shop — "You can always tell a Fifth Avenue Girl . . . you can tell by the style of her hair!"

Where you buy your oil does make a difference! Suppose your burner stops during the coldest night of the year. Don't you want to know that an expert technician will be at your home quickly to make repairs? If you have small children or older people living with you, it's important that you have confidence in your oil dealer. That's why I recommend

JOHN B. HARTENSTINE, JR. INC. who delivers oil to our home automatically, and the amount is metered so we always know how much oil we have received. Service is the big story when dealing with John B. Hartenstine! They offer "twenty-four hour" service, and will take care of your burner problems whether it is noon or midnight or three in the morning when you call! Mobileheat Fuel Oil saves you money, too, because it burns cleaner, with no wasted heat. Visit John B. Hartenstine at 61 West High street, or telephone FA 3-7400 for the most reliable oil delivery service in town.

Married Couples Club Bowling Teams Conclude Season With Banquet, Awards

The Married Couples Club Bowling teams sponsored by the Rainbow class of Parker Ford Baptist church concluded the current season with a banquet at the Trio restaurant, Phoenixville.

Awards were made to winning teams and those with highest individual scores for the year.

Trophies were mounted on a marble base with a gold male or female bowling figurine and inscription plate with "Champs 1960-61".

Winning team was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Hedrick and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Miller winning 21 of 28 games. "Crying towels" were presented to the team of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Williams for winning the least number of games.

Leonard Keen received awards for having the highest male average 172 and highest triple, 609.

Wilson Mayberry won the male high single with 225 and team high triple award was given to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Keen and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Zollers for a total of 1936.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayberry and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Weikel won an award for highest team single score with 689 points.

Mrs. Robert Keen received all three female awards with a high average of 146; high single of 190 and high triple of 479.

Favors consisted of miniature trophy souvenirs inscribed with the bowler's name on each.

Elected as new officers for the coming season which will begin in September were presidents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hedrick; treasurers, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wiand; and re-elected secretaries, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Keen.

Officers for the past year were presidents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keen; and treasurers, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lederer. Mrs. Robert Keen served as mistress of ceremonies for the banquet. She announced that the management of bowling lanes on Route 83, near Phoenixville, extended a special invitation to the church for Friday evening throughout the Summer when two free games will be given to each person.

The current bowling season ended in April with bowling taking place the third Saturday evening of each month.

Discussed during the evening was the possibility of bowling more than one night a month but no definite decision was made. All married couples of the church are eligible to join the team.

Thirty persons attended the banquet, with opening prayer by Robert Dunlap. They were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keen, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Keen, Mr. and Mrs. William Parson, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Zollers, Mr. and Mrs. John Hedrick, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sollinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Lederer, Mr. and Mrs. Weikel, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunlap, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wiand.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love & Marriage

The Right Decision Should Be Obvious

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

When I was 17, I was going with a fellow two years older than I was. We liked each other but never thought of getting married and after awhile we just drifted apart and he got married not long after. As for me, I'm still single.

That was three years ago and recently we seem to keep running into each other and we've found out, now that it's too late, that we really love each other and should have got married. He tells me that he's happy with his wife, but is sure he'd be even happier if he and I could be together, yet neither of us wants to break up his home.

A few days ago, we made a definite appointment to get together and talk everything over and decide what we could do, but even though we both know we'd like to get married we couldn't decide what to do about it.

Are we to go on this way, just running into each other all the time and realizing we're not to be together, or is there any other way out for us? H. T.

Dear H. T.:

Perhaps you and this young man may not be able to avoid running into each other now and then, but I'm inclined to believe you don't have to do it quite as often as you seem to imply has been the case.

You tell me this chap is happy with his wife but wants to be happier. Well, most of us can think of circumstances under which we might be happier than we are, even when we're already happy, but that's no reason whatever for turning our backs on the situation we're in to go looking for a possibly better one.

That would be extremely childish, to say the least, since it would inevitably mean running away from responsibilities we've already taken on.

My opinion is that if you and this young man would agree to let things rest as they are, and each of you put your attention on developing your life along the lines involved in your present circumstances, you would eventually, if not even sooner, come to realize that you can get along very nicely without each other.

Why not be mature enough to make this wise decision?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

About a year ago my husband's brother came to live with us because their mother, with whom he had been living and who was the only one left of their family, had died.

I didn't want him to live with us, but my husband insisted and I was always irritated about it. My brother-in-law realized this, so he liked to tease me about it and act kind of superior as though he had won out over me, which he had.

But finally he decided to get a place of his own, and after that everything was all right between us and we were good friends. He came to the house quite often and almost always to Sunday dinner, and it seemed that I got to like him better and better.

Then, a couple of months ago, he dropped in at the house when I was alone and while we were just sitting around he came over and began kissing me and said he had always loved me. That was all there was to it and we haven't been alone together since, but somehow I keep wondering if maybe I haven't fallen in love with him, too, even though I love my husband very much and don't want to break up our marriage.

Do you think I should talk this over with my husband or just keep it to myself and try to forget it?

Ruth B.

Dear Ruth:

Do you want to precipitate a family crisis over a lot of nonsense that you should be perfectly able to handle yourself?

Stop thinking of this incident as something you must try and forget and just dismiss it from your mind as a piece of passing foolishness on your brother-in-law's part.

And if he ever catches you alone again and repeats his act, say that you'd hate to have to tell him to stop coming to the house but something has got to be stopped and it had better be his attempts at intimacy.

2 PTA Members Receive Awards At Annual Dinner

Two were awarded life memberships at the annual Sarah H. Mellor scholarship fund and life membership awards dinner in Phoenixville Area High school.

Receiving awards were Harold Bealer, a past president of North Coventry Parent-Teacher association, and Nettie Hartmeier, who served in the cafeteria of the school.

Attending from North Coventry Elementary PTA were: Mr. and Mrs. Alan Hohl, Mrs. Isabel Rosewarne, Mrs. Richard Hollowbush Jr., Mrs. Winfield Fisher, Mrs. George Neiffer, Mrs. Robert Saylor, Mrs. Virginia Egolf, Harold Wynne and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bealer.

Also, Mrs. Charlotte High and Nettie Hartmeier.

Shenkel Guild Assists With Family Night

A family night was sponsored by Women's guild of Shenkel United Church of Christ, in conjunction with the consistory. It also was a reception for members taken into the congregation within the last 18 months.

A covered dish supper was served cafeteria style. The Rev. Lawrence Foard Jr., offered the opening prayer.

Decorations were done by Mrs. Herbert Latch and her daughter, Janet, who also described them. There were two different kinds of dove, to represent the Holy Spirit; fleur de lis, representing eternal life; hands of God and words from the Cross.

Miniature stained glass windows, candles and evergreens decorated the tables.

Rev. Foard introduced new members. Carl Bade associate director of the nearby UCC Service center directed group singing.

Linda Renninger gave two recitations. Carol and Nancy Pettit presented instrumental duets. Rev. Foard showed a film, "Sing a Song of Friendship."

The program was closed with prayer by the Rev. L. Meid Becker, director of the Voluntary Service center.

Clean Winter Clothes Before Storing

There's no point in feeding the Summer moth population your fur trimmed Winter coats, coats, tweed suits and other cold season clothing! Before storage, have everything cleaned, since even a small spot attracts moths.

In the case of cherished fur, cold storage at the cleaner's or a furrier's is best — even for fur trims.

If you keep furs at home and use moth crystals, keep them away from direct contact. Moth balls or crystals that touch fur may turn the color and a small cloth bag of them hanging in the storage closet, is recommended.

Brownies of Troop 112 and Mothers Attend Seventh Annual Birthday Dinner

Members of Brownie troop 112, Mont Clare, had their Seventh annual mother and daughter birthday dinner in the annex of the Green Tree Church of the Brethren, Oaks.

Twenty-five members of the troop and their mothers attended.

Mrs. Charles Bathurst, Mont Clare, leader, introduced Mrs. Alice Smith, assistant leader; Mrs. June MacDade, chairman of the committee and Mrs. Norma Geigus, Mrs. Becky Reifsnyder and Mrs. Margaret Cox, assistants.

The new Girl scout leaders for next year will be: Mrs. H. S. Arwine, leader, assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Stufflet and Mrs. Geigus.

Mrs. Arwine was a leader of the Brownie troop for six years and is retiring this year to devote her full time to the Girl scout troop. She was presented with a rosebud by each Brownie for her work.

Mrs. Reifsnyder, chairman of the cookie sale this year, presented awards to Mary Ann Hildebrandt, who sold 146 boxes of cookies; Cheryl Dougherty, 90 boxes; Marie Reifsnyder, 74 boxes, Cheryl MacDade, 55 boxes, Leila Stuart, 54 boxes and Christine Geiser, 50 boxes.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Bathurst and Mrs. Smith for their work with the Brownies.

The closing was a big circle made by the girls and their mothers followed by "Taps."

Attending were: Peggy and Gail Butler, Christine Aghenfelter, Janet Blatt, Margaret Blevins, Carolyn Cox, Cheryl Dougherty, Pamela Ells, Gloria Geigus, Christine Giegus, Mary Ann Hildenbrandt, Susan Harple, Ruth and Bernice Kinderman and Jane Landis.

Also, Cheryl MacDade, Marie Reifsnyder, Leila Stuart, Nancy Stuart, Nancy Stufflet, Renata Raser, Linda Tartaglia, Sally Daywalt, Sarah and Susan Smith and Patty Bathurst, all accompanied by their mothers and several guests who included: Mrs. Anna Bracelin and Mary Etta Beale.

Brownback's Class Meets At Home Of Annie Bechtel

Annie Bechtel, Route 100, Pottstown RD 2, was hostess to the monthly meeting of the Galilean Followers class of Brownback's United Church of Christ, Spring City RD 1, at her home.

President Mrs. Irvin Bauer conducted a business meeting when plans were made for a progressive dinner at the next gathering of the class on June 27.

The committee composed of Mrs. J. Erwin Hewitt, Mrs. George Halteman and Mrs. Howard Shive, will make plans for the affair which will not be revealed until that evening, to other class members.

The class agreed to serve refreshments during Daily Vacation Bible school at the church from June 19 to 30.

Mrs. Howard Shive led a devotional period which began the meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the evening.

Attending were: Mrs. Bauer, Mrs. Edwin Kissinger, Mrs. Harvey Berkey, Mrs. Halteman, Mrs. Robert Painter, Mrs. Hewitt, Mrs. John Keeley, Mrs. J. Donald Shick, Mrs. Shive and Miss Bechtel.

Retired Missionary to Nigeria Speaks At Area Women's Fellowship Service

Special guest for the annual family week service sponsored by the Women's Fellowship of Parker Ford Church of the Brethren was retired missionary Sara C. Shisler, of Souderton.

Miss Shisler, who went to Nigeria, Africa in 1926, and served for a total of 27 years, returned to this country a little more than a month ago.

The retired missionary teacher told of the progress being made in Nigeria among the natives and also spoke of the need for adequate staff personnel at the present time.

Giving statistics concerning the work, she said there have been 1,712 baptihms during the year 1960 and 1,004 additional persons have begun training courses. A total of 24 congregation there are made up of 6,684 members. One hundred forty-three villages have a permanent mission worker living in them attempting to establish the church there and 290 additional villages are contacted by weekly evangelistic workers.

Miss Shisler's work before her retirement was centered at the Waka Training center where she taught Bible courses to the Nigerians.

In enumerating problems which face the mission staff she listed first, the need of adequate staff to work with new members; secondly, the problem of youth moving into the cities; thirdly, the resurgence of Islam, the Mohammedan religion among the people; fourth, politics; and fifth, materialistic tendencies of the Nigerians.

"These problems can be solved," she said, "First, through, prayer; secondly, through better stewardship and thirdly, with the sending of more staff workers."

She spoke also of Nigerian home life and of the vast changes which have taken place since she first went to the country. Women play a much more prominent part in community and church life than in former years she said and Nigerians who have become Christians have improved their living conditions and consider the acquisition of an education an important item in personal development.

Pastor of the church, the Rev. Alvin S. Alderfer, who has known Miss Shisler for many years, introduced her to his congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Griesemer and their family led opening devotions during the service. Mr Greisemer read scripture and his wife spoke briefly and offered prayer. Their daughter, Gail, presented a piano solo. Mrs. John Malenke directed the Junior-Youth choir in the singing of an anthem accompanied by Dale Gohl at the piano and Mrs. Raymond Willauer at the organ.

Following Miss Shisler's talk, the choir sang an anthem "Evening Prayer" as the benediction.

Serving as ushers were Mr. and Mrs. John Simon and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shanaman. The altar vases were filled with arrangements of flame colored gladioli and white carnations and greens.

The Women's fellowship sponsors the special service each year for church families.

Annual family night banquet will be Saturday at Coventryville Methodist church at 6 p. m. A turkey dinner served by the women of that church will be followed by a varied program in charge of the Brethren young people.

Mrs. John R. Malenke is president of the Women's Fellowship.

SERVE YOUR BUFFET DINNER ON TIME

I am going to shout from the housetops about the worst mistake that a hostess can make. Unfortunately, too many hostesses are guilty. Since the same people complain about this procedure when they are guests in another's home, I would like to know why the unpleasant practice continues!

Haven't we all had this kind of evening wished on us?

Mr. and Mrs. Inexperienced have invited you to a buffet supper. The time is seven o'clock. You arrive, looking forward to seeing old friends and having an evening of interesting conversation. Naturally, you have eaten no dinner before leaving home.

As the guests arrive, drinks are served. It is really enjoyable, because there are little tidbits to nibble on. About eight o'clock that enjoyment begins to abate. You are still standing around — waiting. In the meantime, several of the more uninhibited guests have begun to be a little overexuberant.

Nine o'clock — and still no food. The hostess makes no excuses. The drinks keep coming, if you want them. Conversation has waned to the point where everyone has run out of subjects to talk about. All are bored stiff — and hungry.

Finally, at nine-thirty, two and one half hours after the party was supposed to start, food is served. Some of the less sober guests are past the point of caring whether they eat or not (and in the meantime are making nuisances of themselves).

Why, or why, do people invite friends in to share their hospitality, and then treat them this way? Hosts make a very mad mistake when they wait more than an hour, at the very most, to serve the buffet supper.

If some of the guests have not arrived, so be it! They can be fed when they do show up, but it is extremely unfair, and certainly not hospitable, to delay serving those who have been standing around for quite some time.

The good hostess will see to it that her supper is ready when her guests will enjoy it, and she will not defer serving it until they are ready to go home and forget the whole thing!

Question . . . I am going to a very formal dance. My gown is very lovely and is made of a soft, easily-torn material. I know that my escort will present me with a corsage. If I wear it on my dress, I'm sure it will tear. What do you do in a case like this? I don't want to hurt him.

MISS F.C.J.

Answer . . . I sympathize with you in this predicament. But there is a way out! Pin the corsage on your evening bag and all will be well. Your gown will not be torn, and neither will the feelings of your escort.

Pupils At East Coventry Grade School Compete in Annual Field Day Events

A wide variety of races and contests were conducted for pupils at East Coventry Elementary school, Parker Ford at an annual Field Day.

Parents, friends and younger brothers and sisters of pupils came to the school for the special activity a tradition for many years.

Faculty members making up the planning committee included Mrs. Ruth Grebe, chairman; Mrs. Irene Mayberry, Mrs. Elizabeth Moniz and Mrs. Marian Scholten.

This year special awards were pins in yellow with blue printing telling the name of the school and that the wearer is a special field day winner. Highest winners in each room received the awards. Pupils winning the various races received the customary blue, red and yellow ribbons.

Candy, ice cream, popsicles, orange drink, and toys and novelties were sold at stands on the school grounds. These were in charge of Mrs. Martha Hershberger, school nurse and Mrs. Hattie Woodland, school secretary.

Their assistants, mothers of pupils, included the following: Mrs. Robert Buckwalter, Mrs. Steve Domin, Mrs. Raymond Craven, Mrs. Douglas Kulp, Mrs. Kenneth Lessig, Mrs. George Murray, Mrs. Leon A. Pierce, Mrs. Richard Reichman, Mrs. Vincent Wertman, Mrs. Earl Peck, Mrs. Lewis Emery, Mrs. Heistand Miller, Mrs. Robert Painter, Mrs. Paul Fisher and Mrs. Arlyss Henley.

All six grades and kindergarten pupils had peanut scrambles. Mrs. Helen Mowrer's kindergarten pupils took part in races and games with no special competition involved. Each child of this group received a green ribbon award for taking part in the activities.

Winners in Mrs. Marian Scholten's First grade were Ricky Buehler, Joseph Greist, John Wunderlich, Eva Cook, Patti Peiffer and Madelyn Law.

Mrs. Ruth Grebe's Second grade: Mark Williams, Dennis Dry, Paul Montgomery, Robin High, Martha Long, Christine Hunsberger and Nancy Elliott.

Mrs. Leone Fryer's Second and Third grade classroom: James Hatfield, Rodney Bauer, William Cook, Neale Montgomery, Denise Evans and Debbie Berkey.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moniz' Third grade: Gary Diffenderfer, James Fox, Edward Carey, Gail Peck, Diane Keen and Cynthia Heiler.

Mrs. Mayberry's Fourth grade: Jacquelyn Kulp, Kathryn George and Darlene Peterman, Also Donald Taney, Eugene Hatfield, Gregory Roussey, John Snyder and Barry Runyan.

Charles Parvin's Fifth grade: Martha Pechin, Dorcas Peterman, Darlyn Jane Murray, Stanley Levengood, Thomas High, William Fryer and Richard Swavely.

William Fryer's Sixth grade: Shirley Ritschard, Mary Lou Schenck, Gloria Miller, Robert Oberholtzer and David Hughes.

Annual JWL Donor Luncheon Staged In Spring Setting at Local Synagog

Jewish Women's league annual luncheon was staged in the vestry rooms of Mercy and Truth synagog in a setting of Spring, with blossoms burstling forth from trees and May arrangements.

A fountain of water cascading into a pool of water lilies formed a background for luncheon tables of pink, white and purple, centered with flower arrangements in the same colors.

Mrs. Emil Schorsch led the group in prayer. Rabbi Dr. Emil Schorsch installed new board members.

Members and guests were welcomed by Donor Chairman Mrs. Leon Fidler. Mrs. Sol Borger, president of Eastern Pennsylvania branch of National Women's leagues and a member of the local sisterhood, spoke about "preserving Jewish values, our priceless heritage".

President Mrs. Albert Leblang welcomed the women.

Mrs. Harold Prince, co-chairman of the luncheon introduced the guest soprano. Miriam Menaker who sang English and Hebrew songs. She concluded with "What Is the Temple to Me." The soloist is vice president of Harrisburg sisterhood.

She was accompanied by Albert Morrison, Harrisburg pianist.

Members of the committee on arrangements included: Mrs. Fidler and Mrs. Prince luncheon chairmen, Mrs. Joseph L. Prince and Mrs. Maurice Kressen; decorations, Mrs. Emanuel Berman; program, Mrs. Prince; invitations, Mrs. Albert Sanft and Mrs. Milton Hirsch.

Reservations, Mrs. Abe Pollock and Mrs. Allan Rosen; table settings, Mrs. George Prince and Mrs. Howard Kostiner; program souvenires, Mrs. Martin A. Feit, Mrs. I. William Collins and Mrs. Alan M. Lieb.

Hostess, Mrs. Harold Katzen; contact, Mrs. William Levin; admissions, Mrs. Robert Printz and Mrs. Joseph Brenner; business, Mrs. Harry Pollock, maintenance, Mrs. Stanley Prince and publicity Mrs. Lieb.

General committee, Mrs. Edward Hoffman, Mrs. Louis Sager, Mrs. Alexander Berger, Mrs. William Dennis, Mrs. Paul Gross, Mrs. Pincus Hoffman, Mrs. C. S. Leventhal, Mrs. Herman Lichtman, Mrs. Emanuel Rivlin, Agnes Prince and Mrs. Horace Prince.

JWVLA Announces Plans for Dinner At Brookside Club

Plans for the Donor dinner at Brookside on June 7 were announced at a meeting of the Jewish War Veterans Ladies auxiliary in Mercy and Truth synagog.

Mrs. David Alexander will be in charge of the affair. The dedication of a new wing at the Royer Greaves school in Paoli will take place June 11 and members of the club will attend.

The state convention will begin in Philadelphia on June 2. Delegates to the affair include: Mrs. Jeanne Gutman, Alice Princenthal, Mrs. Nettie Kostiner and Mrs. Yetta Miller.

Mrs. Alexander, national chaplain and Mrs. Morton Schonberger, state treasurer, will attend the convention.

Program for the evening included a resume of the highlights of the National Executive committee meeting in Washington, D. C., attended by Mrs. Alexander and the highlights of the state department meeting in York attended by Mrs. Gutman.

Making Money Is Child's Play For Jackie Ryff

By VIVIAN BROWN
(AP Newsfeatures Writer)

Measles, mumps and chicken pox are likely to be costly experiences for two year old Jacqueline Ryff. She stands to lose $95 a day plus dividends when she can't show up for work.

The pretty 3-foot statuesque blue-eyed platinum blonde has been a model since age nine months. Her face has helped sell soap, diapers, cleansing tissues and other products in her short life as a working baby.

"If you'd call it work," says her mother Marie Ryff. "Jackie loves it so much it's just like play to her.

Then some days she reports for work and gets paid for doing absolutely nothing. Once she received $475 for 2½ hours work.

"The studio didn't get to the children for three days then the mother-model flubbed her lines which meant everybody reported again for two days more," she explains.

Jackie's first job at nine months was inspired by her godfather, ex-prize fighter Barney Ross, who manages her boxer father Frankie Ryff.

Jackie won her first job in a TV soap commercial over 200 competing babies.

"She knows exactly when to put on the charm," her mother says. "She made a nice round sound with her mouth with lots of expression in her eyes and a raised eyebrow. And she's a fresh looking baby, the kind the soap companies want."

Jackie works mainly for television because the residual payments are like annuities. Until aged two babies do commercial work and magazine covers. When they grow to 39 inches "they come into the big money," Mrs. Ryff says.

Each time one of her commercials is on a sponsored show Jackie gets $55. If it's used in a spot commercial, she is paid according to the category of the commercial, Mrs. Ryff points out. These range from "AAA" to "C" spots.

"One of Jackie's commercials involving an hour's work shows her sniffling in a crib. Now every time she sniffles on TV she is due another check for $55," Mrs. Ryff says.

A two-year-old working girl needs a sizeable wardrobe, however, Jackie has 34 dresses but so far she hasn't drawn on her own money to be fashionable. Her parents are banking it for her education.

Well known baby photographer Joseph Schneider has predicted a great future for Jackie because of the unusual combination of talent, poise, looks and a seemingly high I.Q.

Her father Frankie Ryff is a well known boxer having won the Rookie of the year award in 1954 and the Chicago award. She has a big sister, 13-year-old Angela.

Many mothers of model babies are said to upset babies, photographers, and horrify onlookers by driving their children to perform.

But the show director usually asks Mrs. Ryff to stay with Jackie.

"We get along so well. Once in a while she'll get in a mood like all toddlers. I'll say 'that's all right darling. Forget it.' Then, as if to defend me, she does something terrific."

Mrs. Ryff has no fear that Jackie will become a brat, often the case when a youngster becomes aware of her talents.

"If I ever think Jackie is being spoiled by this work, I won't continue it. But she's not that type of child. She's happy-go-lucky and fun to be around."

New Hanover Lutheran Church, Scene Of Brownie and Girl Scout Program

A program for New Hanover Girl scouts was given at the Lutheran church by Brownie troop 38 and Girl scout troops, 77 and 19. Color guard was: Susan Davidheiser, Frances Reid, Carol Levengood and Marjorie Gilley.

Following the salute to the flag, the "Star Spangled Banner" and invocation, group singing took place.

The Brownie portion of the program was conducted by Mrs. Perry Scott.

New Brownies invested were: Barbara Wirt, Sandra Hums, Judy Jacobs, Karen Krause, Marguerite Costa and Jean Long. New committee members invested by Mrs. Robert Bittle were: Mrs. George Rittenhouse, Mrs. William Moyer, Mrs. Chester Otter, Mrs. Samuel Garber.

Mrs. John Bieleski was rededicated into Girl scouting. She will serve as new leader of troop 19.

Brownies receiving two year pins were: Brenda Scott, Diane Bieleski, Susan Krause, JoAnne Moyer and Cindy Hums and one year pins went to: Kathleen Fronheiser, LuAnn Nester, Gery Scott, Ruth Ann Richard, Candye Bartechko, Kim Hollowbush, Judy Moyer and Cheryl Kirby.

Susan Singer was invested at the same time by Mrs. Harry Heller Jr., during a candlelight ceremony.

Troop 77 awards went to: Second class, Irene Sawicki, Audrey Scott, Judith Settle, Barbara Speith, Susan Stauffer and Connie Bickle; homemaker and second class, Lynn Davidson, Sandy Deloplaine and one year pin and third class, Donna Erb.

Also, cook and second class, Linda Matyasavsky and Lynn Tesznar. Four year pins went to Susan Nester, Donna Speith and Linda Paley. Animal raiser and four year pin, Linda Jacobs; cook and five year pin, Melodee Heller.

Also, cook, June Gerhart; farmer, cook, homemaker and first class, Peggy Otter. Peggy Otter also received a special certificate from Mrs. Robert Bittle for selling more than 100 boxes of cookies during the Winter cookie sale.

Troop 19 awards were presented by Mrs. Kenneth Deloplaine to Cathy Jacobs, animal raiser and music appreciation; Barbara Balsavage, group musician; Claudia Sloshak, four year pin; Pauline Gerhart, seven year pin and Frances Reid, five year pin.

A hat social followed the presentation of awards by the Brownies. A brief Mother's Day skit was presented by members of the Brownie troop and Girl scout troop 77. Mother's Day songs were sung by the Brownies and Girl scouts. Gifts for mothers were on display.

Refreshments were served by the Brownies.

Other committee women include: Mrs. Hums, Mrs. Knouse, Mrs. Otter and assistant leaders, Mrs. Bickle, Mrs. Davidheiser and Mrs. Sabrick.

Scavenger Hunt Highlights Meeting Of Church Class

Highlighting the monthly meeting of the Truth Seekers class of Brownback's United Church of Christ was a scavenger hunt pitting the men against the women.

The groups started from the church, Spring City RD 1, and searched throughout the community for a variety of items including fishing worms. The men of the group completed the list winning over the women by about two minutes, it was reported.

Teacher of the class, Mrs. George Lucas, opened the meeting with a devotional period. Vice President Jesse Painter conducted the business session in the absence of President C. Albert Latshaw.

Plans were made for a softball game and wiener roast on June 17 at Ridge Fire company ball field, Spring City RD 1. In charge of this activity will be Jack Keeley, Robert Keck and Joseph Kandler.

Hostesses Mrs. Latshaw and Mrs. Richard Walters served pizza pie at the close of the meeting.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Painter and daughter, Colleen; Mrs. Latshaw, Mrs. Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keck and daughters, Susan and Jane; Mr. and Mrs. Kandler and son, Joey; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Walters and children, Mark, Susan and Kay and Jack Keeley.

Scout Round-up

SAYLOR BATS WINNING RUN HOME IN 8TH

Winners Meet Raiders For Loop Crown Saturday

By JERRY RUTTER
(Mercury Sports Writer)

PHOENIXVILLE — Dan Ferguson gave Pottstown High the break it needed, and the Trojans took full advantage to wrap up the Upper division title of the Ches-Mont league with a 4-3, extra-inning win over Spring-Ford here Thursday.

Ferguson — who was in a nip-and-tuck battle with Ron Hallman — hit Bob Yeager with a sidearm delivery and Barry Saylor lined a double down the left field line to plate the hustling Yeager with the winning run.

The Trojans will meet Coatesville for the league crown at West Chester State college Saturday.

Spring-Ford scored twice in the top of the seventh to send the game into overtime. Emmette Schaeffer singled on a grounder that took a bad hop past short, and Nick Tuscai belted a Hallman delivery to right centerfield for a double.

THE RELAY came to Second Basemen Barry Papp, who threw wild to the plate, allowing Schaeffer to score. Tuscai went on to third on the throw. Ed Mogel grounded to third and Barry Schwartz held Tuscai at third and threw out Mogel.

Rich Brower followed with a squeeze bunt. Hallman fielded the ball and threw home too late to get Tuscai. The rally tied the game at 3-3.

Spring-Ford drew first blood in the second inning. Harry Beltz poked a single to right. Ken Landis laid down a bunt that moved Beltz to second. Schaeffer picked out an 0-2 offering and singled to center to plate Beltz.

John Miller—who started on the hill for the Bob McNeilly forces—walked Barry Swartz and Yeager to start the Pottstown fourth, and was lifted at this point in favor of Ferguson.

THE RIGHTHANDED chucker got Eddie Laws on a fly to left, but uncorked a wild pitch before getting Laws out, moving both runners up a base.

Saylor attempted a two-strike squeeze bunt missed the ball and Swartz was tagged out to

Barry Traite's single that scored pinchhitter Gordon Wampler with the winning run climaxed a three-run inning in which Minneapolis-Honeywell rallied to erase an early Hart's Plumbing lead enroute to a 5-4 City Softball league victory at Memorial park.

The winners — who vaulted into third place — went into the inning trailing 4-2. Bob Shea singled to lead off the inning and Bob Kulp delivered him to the plate with a double.

Wampler — batting for Joe Corrigan — was safe on an error by Ken Quinter as Kulp scormed the tying run, Wampler going to second. Traite then delivered the game-winning hit.

The single made a winner out of Kulp, who had surrendered three first-inning runs to the Plumbers, who got another in the second as "Jaybird" Whitehurst walked.

A SINGLE, a sacrifice and a fielder's choice delivered Whitehurst to the plate.

The hurler however, was unable to hold the lead, and ran into trouble in the third, when the Plumbers scored twice.

Kulp beat out a bunt and moved to second on an overthrow, and once again Traite delivered the RBI hit, which broke the scoring ice for the winners.

Whitehurst took the loss after surrendering six hits.

Sica Takes Role Of 'Bystander'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Sica, one of five men charged with trying to seize control of a ring champion's purse, was described by his attorney Thursday in these terms:

"Just a neighbor who stuck his nose into a family affair and got hurt."

Sica, of Los Angeles, is accused of having been one of a group of men who assertedly tried to take over purses of former Welterweight Champion Don Jordon.

Attorney Russell Parsons, representing Sica, charged in final arguments to the jury of 10 women and 2 men that a key prosecution witness, fight promoter Jackie Leonard, lied when he told of telephoned threats.

SAINTS EDGE KENRICK FOR 7TH TRIUMPH

Keim Streeters Remain In Race For SC Loop Crown

NORRISTOWN — Nick Petro banged a two-run homer in the first inning, then came on to bail out beleagured hurler Skip Peterman in the fourth inning, as St. Pius X downed Bishop Kenrick, 4-2 here Thursday.

Petro also scored what proved to be the winning run in the top of the fourth after leading off the inning with a single.

He was singled along by Butch Marcheski and scored when Johnny Katona was safe on an error by First Sacker Mike McBrien later in the inning.

Petro's homer came at the expense of Kenrick Starter Jack Cameron, with Teammate Denny Psota on base.

PSOTA HAD walked on four pitches to lead off the game, and moved to second on Ken Stutz' sacrifice.

Petro then whacked a 1-0 pitch for his homer for an early 2-0 St. Pius lead.

After Petro had scored to make the score 3-0 in the fourth, Peterman — making his first start of the season —ran into trouble in the home fourth.

Fran Blanche singled and was safe on an attempted steal when Catcher Butch Marcheski's throw went awry.

TERRY GARRIGAN followed with a single, scoring Blanche, and Peterman walked Denny Cottone, putting runners at first and third.

Garrigan greeted Reliever Petro by stealing home, and McBrien hit into a fielder's choice on which all hands were

LISTON-INGO BOUT SLATED

'Would Like to Beat Sonny,' Says Ingemar

GENEVA, Switzerland, (AP)— Ingemar Johansson spoke boldly that "it would be "fun to beat Sonny Liston after he agreed Thursday to fight the top-ranking heavyweight contender from Philadelphia sometime this year at a site still to be picked.

"I don't think he is unbeatable," said the former World heavyweight champion from Sweden. "I think I can lick him.

It would be fun to beat him after those big words from him," added Ingo with a smile on his handsome, dimpled face.

Johansson made the announcement after talking with Bill Fugazy of Championship Sports, incorporated (formerly Feature Sports, incorporated) at a Geneva hotel. Ingo said CSI will promote the fight and pick the date and site.

THE 28-YEAR-OLD husky said the fight will be held "sometime before Dec. 31, 1961 and most probably in September," but the site depended on how he fares in his tax battle with Uncle Sam.

The United States claims Ingemar owes about $1 million in income taxes for his three title fights with World Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson. The case will be decided in Miami, Fla., June 13.

Colebrookdale Chapel scored twice in the top of the seventh inning, then shaved off a Kimberton rally in the home seventh for a 4-3 Church league victory Thursday at Memorial park.

The two-run seventh gave Colebrookdale the lead for the first time in the game, and made a winning pitcher of Laverne Gresh for the first time this season.

It also was the first loss suffered by Kimberton, the defending league champion, who tumbled into fourth place. Colebrookdale tied St. James and Coventryville-Cedarville for the lead with 1-0 slate.

Gresh had replaced Dick Ludy on the mound for the winners, after Ludy had surrendered two runs in the first inning. The change was made however, after Colebrookdale had tied the score on a two-run fourth.

IT WAS the Gresh-Ludy combine which also scored the tie-breaking run in the top of the seventh.

Ludy doubled to left field, scoring Gresh from first base, then rode home with the winning run on a single by Jim Erb.

The losers rallied for a run in the home seventh when Ron Boettger—batting for Dave Miller—was safe on an error and was driven across by Ken Finkbiner, the losing hurler.

Finkbiner allowed but six hits—one less than the losers accumulated—while walking two and fanning five.

Nine Walks Pave Path To Victory by 6-4 Pad

BALTIMORE (AP)— The Baltimore Orioles scored six runs in te hirstf two innings on two singles and nine walks, and held on for a 6-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox Thursday night.

The Orioles extended their longest winning streak of the season to four, while the White Sox dropped their sixth consecutive game.

Chicago starter and loser, lefty Herb Score, failed to retire a batter in the first inning and left with the bases loaded and three runs across the plate.

After Score walked the first two men, Brooks Robinson and Gus Triandos rapped run-scoring singles. Score's late throw to third on an attempted sacrifice and another walk forced in Robinson and brought Juan Pizzaro to the mound.

Peaks Inks '61 Pact With Champion Eagles

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — Clarence Peaks, veteran fullback, and Gene Gossage, a guard-tackle, have signed their 1961 contracts with the champion Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football league, the club announced.

Peaks gained 465 yards on 86 carries before a broken leg sidelined him for the last five games of 1960. Gossage played in all of last year's games as a defensive end and tackle and guard on offense.

The victory shoved Brownbacks into a third-place tie with Linfield Reformed, who topped winless Christ Episcopal, 6-3 Thursday.

Spring City Methodist and Bethel Methodist continued to pace the league with 3-0 logs. Spring City topped Parker Ford Baptist 27-12, and Bethel drew the bye.

Bill Hinnershitz, who hurled a six-hitter, walking three to outduel Dick Tryhall, who also allowed six bingles and three Annie Oakleys.

A double by Hinnershitz and Dick Bowden's triple earned Brethren the lead it never lost in the fourth.

Top Winners Set For Shot At 2nd Feature Honors

WILLIAMS GROVE, Pa.—Leroy Felty, Johnny Dubendorf and Frankie Thompson will be the drivers to watch on tomorrow night's modified stock car racing card on the Williams Grove speedway.

Each of the trio has scored a main event victory in as many programs staged in the season-long weekly series on Bob Richwine's half-mile oval and are eager to become the first to boast two 25-lap feature race wins.

Felty, 32-year-old garage and service station operator from Jonestown, was in a position to accomplish the feat on last week's card, but missed his golden opportunity when he "pulled up" on the final circuit convinced he had scored his second race after the opener on April 21.

Felty insists he is the victor, claiming the checkered flag was flashed and he stopped up the backstretch to see if he could help Clem LaMaster, Winchester (Va.) chauffer, who had crashed into the guardrail several laps earlier.

But officials contend Felty was in error about the flags and Thompson, 27-year-old Shrewsberry truck driver, who had been trailing by about 200 yards kept rolling, giving the Grove's 1959 champion his first win on the track this year.

Cage Scandal Keeps Growing

Basketball Future Shaky at Seton Hall

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, (AP)—District attorneys and college officials in many parts of the Nation were buzzing Thursday from the impact of the mushrooming basketball scandal already involving 28 players, 17 schools and 39 games.

Alfred J. Scotti, chief assistant attorney in New York, refused to discuss any possible future developments except to say, "the investigation is continuing. We still are concentrating on fixes."

Ray Paprocky, New York university star who was one of 12 new names brought into the scandal Wednesday, said in an interview with Gene Roswell of the New York Post, "They'll never get the big guys."

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said Paprocky admitted receving $2300 to shave points in four games last season.

"AFTER YOU reach the Hackens (Joseph Hacken, 48, New York who has been indicted on 17 counts of bribery and one of conspiracy), it goes to the top and no one tells on them," Paprocky continued. "They'd put a bullet in the guy who talks. The ones they have now, they'll never open up. They're afraid."

From Raleigh, N.C., came word that Lester Chalmers, the district solicitor (prosecutor) said more warrants probably will be issued in connection with the scandals after he makes another trip to New York next week. He said he had talked at length with New York officials after Wednesday's developments.

The president of Seton Hall university, Msgr. John J. Dougherty, said a committee is considering the future of basketball at Seton Hall.

Art Hicks of Chicago and Henry Gunter of New York, two Seton Hall players named in the point-shaving scandals, have been dismissed from school as of April 12. They had been suspended March 17 when the story broke.

IN PEORIA, ILL., a Bradley university spokesman said the school was "deeply disappointed that Al Saunders and Tim Robinson, two Bradley basketball players, refused to report a bribe offer."

The acting president of Bradley, Dr. A. G. Haussler, said the matter had been referred to the men's discipline committee of the university.

The Bradley players were among six listed by Hogan who rejected bribe offers but failed to report them to the proper authorities.

The mother of Maurice (Corky) Gilmore, a Colorado university player, said in New Canaan, Conn., that her son rejected a bribe offer last Summer while playing on a Summer resort team at Far Rockaway, N.Y.

Wake Forest college issued a statement in Winston Salem, N.C. that Billy Packer, its basketball star, had voluntarily gone to New York to confer for two days with officials from Hogan's office and "so far as the college is concerned Parker is innocent of any wrongdoing in connection with the scandal and he will resume his regular schedule as a student."

St. John's university in New York said it did not plan to de-emphasize sports. Hogan named Mike Parenti and Bill Chrystal, former St. John's players, for having allegedly received $4,450 each for five games in the 1956-57 season.

Tony Jackson, 1960 All-America at St. John's who rejected a bribe offer but failed to report it, plans to play with the New York Tapers in the National Basketball league. The Tapers' president said Jackson had told him the whole story. He said Jackson figured the bribe attempt by phone was a nuisance call and forgot it.

The basketball scandal already has involved two men who were mentioned in connection with attempted college football fixes. Aaron Wagman, indicted April 27 on 37 counts of bribery and attempted bribery in the basketball scandal, was convicted in Jacksonville, Fla., last September of offering Florida Fullback John MacBeth $1500 to fix a game with Florida State. MacBeth reported the offer to the authorities. Wagman was out on bail, pending an appeal, when arrested in the basketball case.

David Budin, former Brooklyn college basketball captain who was named a co-conspirator and associate of Hacken's, was arrested last September in connection with an alleged attempt to bribe Oregon Halfback Mickey Bruce to fix a game with Michigan. Budin eventually was released because of insufficient evidence. Budin, however, was convicted of false registration at a motel and fined $100.

Don't tell HIM our traffic laws are too tough!

A family of four was out for a holiday drive. Suddenly, a speeder lost control of his car, plunged across the divider strip on the highway and smashed into their car, head on. Mother, father and two children were killed.

As a State Trooper, it's his job to help pick up the pieces. He doesn't believe our traffic laws are too tough. He doesn't think they're tough enough, because he knows how tough Death can be!

Koufax Fires 3-Hitter Davis Whacks HR in 7th

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sandy Koufax fired a three-hit 1-0 shutout at the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday night with Tom Davis' seventh-inning homer giving the hard-throwing Los Angeles lefty all he needed.

The 6-foot-2, 204-pound Koufax simply blew his fast one past the dazzled Red Bird batters. He struck out eight—only one after the fifth inning. But he again showed his control is much better than the Koufax of other years—a strikeout king but never a consistent winner—by only walking three.

The Cards moved only one man past first base.

Stan Musial's single to center in the second inning was the only Red Bird hit until the ninth. Stan also drew one of three walks issued by Koufax who won his fifth. Daryl Spencer and pitcher Bob Gibson drew the other two.

Davis' home run, his eighth, broke up a great duel between Koufax and Gibson, who fanned eight, walked five and gave up only five hits but took his first defeat. He has won two.

Davis had struck out his first two trips. Leading off the seventh he took one ball, then clubbed the next one about 390 feet to the bleachers in left center.

Koufax put down the only Red Bird threat in the ninth to wrap up the first complete game of his career against the Cards in his 19th start against them.

Villanova Topheavy Pick To Retain IC4-A Diadem

NEW YORK (AP)—Villanova, knee-deep in talent, rates the overwhelming favorite to win the IC4A track and field championship for the fourth time in the last five years Friday and Saturday.

Trials are scheduled for Friday and all 18 finals Saturday.

Last year, Villanova won the title with 38 points. The only scorer who is not back for another whirl is John Buckley, who was second in the broad jump. That was worth four points.

But he won't be missed. To take his place Coach Jumbo Jim Elliott has three worthy Sophomores.

BILLY JOE, a shotputter, ranks as the favorite in his specialty on the basis of having won the IC4A indoor title and leading all eligibles with a 57-4¾ outdoor mark earlier in the Spring.

Also on hand are Doug Kerr, a 209-10½ javelin thrower, and Pat Traynor, who scored in the indoor two mile run and figures to haul down a couple of points in the steeplechase (there is no two-mile outdoors).

"We're the defending champions," said Elliott, "and we're not going into the meet to lose it."

Yale, Penn State and possibly Maryland are the other strong contenders. However, none of the three can match the Wildcats' depth.

"I DON'T see how we can beat them," said Yale Coach Bob Giegengack, who DID beat them for the indoor crown. The Elis accomplished the feat because Villanova's mile relay team was disqualified.

Villanova supplied two winners last year—Leon Pras in the high hurdles and the mile relay team that set an IC4A record of 3:12. That quartet of Joe Manion, Carl Wagner, Nick Deangelis and Bob Raemore, is back intact.

Then there are Frank Budd, who was second in the 100 and third in the 220; Paul Drayton, third in the 100; Raemore, fourth in the 440; Jon Dante, second in the 880; Hubie White, third in the hop, step and jump and tied for third in the high jump, and Gerry Donini, third in the shot.

Steeler Tryouts Slated Sunday

The American Legion (Junior) baseball team, co-sponsored by USWA 2326 and George A. Amole Legion Post 47, will hold its first tryouts Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Enterprise field, Fifth and Manatawny streets.

Boys between the ages of 16 and 18 years are eligible to play, and all interested boys are urged to attend.

Players from the Pottstown High, St. Pius X, Pottsgrove and Owen J. Roberts districts are eligible to play with the Steelers, defending titlists in the Ches-Mont circuit.

Lane Wasn't Stripped Of Trading Weapons

KANSAS CITY, (AP)—Charles Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, said Thursday that he had not curtailed the powers of his general manager Frank Lane.

After the two met Thursday morning, Finley reported that they had arrived at a number of conclusions.

"One is," Finley said, "that there is absolutely no truth to any statement that Lane has been stripped of any of his powers as general manager. That story has gotten out and I resent it.

"The fact is that Lane now has the same power of office he had when he first assumed the job. I want to make that very plain because these stories have been printed round the country and they have done an injustice to myself, to Lane and to the ball club."

Nuxhall Hurls Kaycee Past Senators By 4-3

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Joe Nuxhall pitched Kansas City to a 4-3 victory over Washington Thursday despite home runs by Willie Tasby and Gene Green of the Senators.

It was the second triumph for Nuxhall who has lost once. The defeat was the fifth in a row for starter Dick Donovan of the Senators who pitched six-hit ball through seven innings. Johnny Klippstein finished on the mound for Washington.

The A's scored in the first inning when Dick Howser walked, stole second and went to third on a passed ball before scoring on Al Pilarcik's ground out.

Tasby's fourth homer of the season came with the bases empty in the fourth and tied the score.

The A's wrapped it up with three runs in the fifth when Leo Posada, rookie centerfielder, was hit in the face by a pitch. He was carried from the field and Jay Hankins replaced him. Wayne Causey sacrificed and Nuxhall singled Hankins home. Howser doubled Nuxhall to third and both rode home on Pilarcik's single.

Gibbs Signs With Yanks

NEW YORK (AP)—Jake Gibbs, Mississippi's All-America baseball and football player, signed a New York Yankee baseball contract Thursday for a whopping bonus, admittedly "over $100,000." He was assigned to the Yankees Richmond club of the International league.

Ford Wins 6th, Deals Up 3-Run Homer To Jensen

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Blanchard and Tony Kubek crashed two-run homers as the New York Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox 6-4 Thursday night and southpaw Whitey Ford won his sixth in a row with relief help from Luis Arroyo.

Ford, whose lone loss came in the season opener, blanked the Red Sox on two singles until Jackie Jensen belted a three-run homer into the left field seats in the seventh inning. Ford had retired 14 in a row before giving up his only two walks, to Carroll Hardy and Carl Yastrzemski, ahead of Jensen's homer, his third of the year.

The Yankee ace gave way in the eighth, however, after singles by Don Buddin and pinchhitter Rip Repulski. A run scored on Bobby Richardson's error as Arroyo got Chuck Schilling to hit into a force play, but the little Puerto Rican lefty then got Hardy on a fly ball and fanned Yastrzemski.

The Yankees, winning three in a row, chased starter Billy Muffett (0-4) in two innings. They scored three in the first, triggered by Blanchard's third home run, after an opening single by Kubek, and nailed it with two more in the second when Kubek hit his third homer following a walk by Ford.

New York's other run came in the fifth off Dave Hilman on a leadoff double by Bill Skowron and singles by Bob Cerv and Richardson.

The Yankees, sweeping the two-game series, again were without center fielder Mickey Mantle, out with a groin injury.

The Red Sox played errorless ball for the ninth straight game, tying an American League record held by many clubs. The National League record is 11.

Twins Halt Tigers, 7-6 On Lemon's Hit in 11th

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Jim Lemon's single to left field in the 11th inning drove home Lennie Green with the winning run Thursday as the Minnesota Twins edged the Detroit Tigers 7-6.

Green had doubled to lead off the inning and went to third on a sacrifice by Reno Bertoia. After Harmon Killebrew was intentionally passed, Lemon came through with his blow off reliever Jim Donohue.

In the ninth inning, a pinch double by Dan Dobbek and a run-scoring single by pinch hitter Bertoia tied the count at 5-5. After Billy Bruton's homer put the Tigers back in front in the 10th, Hal Naragon came through with the Twins' third pinch hit, plating Bob Allison.

The victory went to Paul Giel, the third Twins' pitcher, his first in the American League.

Detroit scored five runs in the first off starter Pete Ramos on two home runs. Al Kaline hit his third in three days with two on and Norm Cash cracked his eighth with one aboard.

Ramos then blanked the American League leaders on two hits through the ninth.

After scoring three runs in the fourth on Lemon's two-run homer and Earl Battey's solo round-tripper, the Twins came back with one in the eighth on two walks and two singles.

Green also collected three singles to run his consecutive game hitting string to 22.

Falcons Outlast Cards, 11-9 in League Windup

Pottsgrove High's Falcons spotted Upper Dublin three first-inning runs Thursday, then roared back to outlist the Cardinals in an 11-9 Inter-County league slugfest at Pottsgrove.

A total of 15 errors were committed in the game, the season's windup for both clubs. But the Falcons clubbed 11 hits, including a two-run homer by Mike LaHoda.

The victory was the ninth of the league season for the Falcons, who lost three and had an overall 13-3 mark, their best showing in the history of the school.

Jim Sitko, making his first start of the year, was tagged for three first-inning runs when Frank Gouak was safe on an error, Bod Fad walked.

BACK-TO-BACK singles by Jim Edmunds and Frank Leonetti followed, scoring Gouak and Fad, and when Leonetti's blow was muffed in the outfield, Edmunds raced around to score.

The Falcons roared back in the home first however, when Pete Millard, LaHoda and Dave Rumler walked to fill the bases. Bill Logan was safe on an error, scoring Millard and LaHoda.

Roger Raspen then cleared the bases with a double, one of two extra base blows by the Birds.

LaHoda's homer came in the bottom of the third inning, extending the Falcon lead to 9-5.

Sitko meanwhile, was touched for at least one run in each inning, but the Falcons were scoring runs at a faster clip than the Cardinals.

Trojans Win 4-3 In Playoff Tilt

end the threat.

The Trojans got a break in the sixth and went on to score three runs. With one out Swartz walked. Yeager hit a ground ball to second that Schaeffer fielded. He elected to go for the force but threw the ball into left field. Swartz went to third and Yeager to second on the misplay, and Saylor followed with a hot smash that Landis knocked down but couldn't make a play on, allowing Swartz to score.

Hallman—who fanned 15 batters and pitched out of hot water all afternoon—aided his own cause with a line single to center that scored Yeager with the second run and Saylor with the third.

Both teams had runners die on the basepaths in crucial points of the game. Hallman's best cure was his curve ball that got him out of several tight spots.

Spring-Ford's Bob Harker came up with the fielding play of the day with a diving catch with a runner on third in the

Golden Cubs Top Spring-Ford 6-4

Karl Schoellkopf and Steve Kaska drove in runs with fielder's choices, as Pottstown Junior High shaded Spring-Ford's Hornets, 6-4 at Spring City.

The two runs, scored by Don Wentzel and Scott Bush, broke a 4-4 tie, and ended an uphill climb for the Cubs which had begun with a pair of runs in the fifth frame.

The Hornets had hopped on Bush for a run in the first and added three more in the home fourth after the Cubs had tied the count at 1-all on Bush's triple and Schoellkopf's single.

The Cubs added a pair in the fifth, and tied the score in the sixth when Kaska walked and scored after George Wentzel singled and Bob Fillman walked.

Harness Tracks Licenses Issue Still In Doubt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The method of granting licenses to operate harness tracks in Pennsylvania was questioned before the State Supreme Court Thursday.

The issue is whether or not the Racing Commission has sole, unchallenged jurisdiction or must hold a public hearing.

The Keystone Racing corporation protested award of the State's first license last April 5 to a competitor, Liberty Bell Racing association.

Keystone asked the State's highest tribunal to throw out the license on the ground it was granted illegally under the laws of Pennsylvania.

THIS POSITION was attacked by the Harness Racing commission and Liberty Bell.

Six justices heard the case. Justice Michael A. Mussmanno was absent.

Thomas D. McBride, a former State attorney general and Supreme Court justice representing Keystone, said there must be a public hearing to determine which applicant in a similar area is best suited to operate a track.

Under State law only four licenses can be granted, and these are issued for one year only.

Justices Benjamin R. Jones and John C. Bell both suggested that it places the applicant in a difficult position to have to spend many millions to build a track and only be certain of one year's operation.

Atty. Francis Sullivan for Liberty Bell said, "this is a hazardous business."

Colonels Bow to Champs, 8-0 in Final

Ed Cirn throttled Collegeville-Trappe's Colonels on two hits Thursday, and Kent Mills swatted a three-run homer as Lower Moreland won its 12th straight Inter-County league tilt, 8-0 at Collegeville.

The victory for the Lions—which wrapped up the league crown—was the 22nd in a row over a two-season span.

The Lions went after Rich Schaffer in the second with a run, when Bill Steidle, Bob Worthington and Bill Boerner hit back-to-back singles.

Steidle also led off the fourth

Schaffer, who pitched the first 5⅓ innings for the Colonels, absorbed the full brunt of the Lions' 15-hit barrage. He also walked two and hit two batters.

The Lions added two runs each in the fifth and sixth frames to chase Schaffer, bringing in Rich Brown, who finally stopped the "hit parade."

The Colonels dropped their eighth against four wins, closing out their 1961 log on a losing note, their first in the Inter-County circuit.

Sherluck to Try Again Tuesday In Jersey Derby

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—Jacob Sher of Miami purchased a yearling at the Saratoga sale in 1959. His wife suggested the horse be given a name symbolic of luck. Thus was born to the track, Sherluck.

Sherluck, now one of the nation's better 3-year-old thoroughbreds has had plenty of luck. The trouble is it's been all bad. Sher and Mrs. and Trainer Harold Young are hopeful the colt is going to have a change starting in the $100,000 Jersey derby Memorial Day at Garden State park.

Young, who plans to give Sherluck a good workout over the racing strip here before Tuesday's big run, is philosophical about the colt's run of poor luck.

"It'll change one of these days, and then watch out," asserts the trainer, a strong note of confidence in his tone.

Young doesn't feel it was bad luck that accounted for Sherluck's lacklustre performance in the Preakness last week. "He didn't run a lick in the Preakness," said Young. "I don't know what was wrong with him. Maybe he didn't like the track. It was cuppy."

The trainer said Sherluck, who will be ridden in the 1⅛ mile derby by Jockey Timmy Barrow, came out of the Preakness in fine shape. "He should have," added Young. "He didn't do anything."

Young feels Fred Hooper's Crozier and Leonard Sasso's Globemaster, a pair of speedballs, are the horses to beat in the Jersey.

In addition to Sherluck, Crozier and Globemaster, the race is expected to line up with Mrs. Ethel Jacob's Dr. Miller, Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Try Cash, Elendorf farm's Speak John, Mrs. Robert Dotter's Guadacanal, and Boncrist farm's Nashua Blue.

Moore Top Point Man At Hatfield Over PROS Field

Harry Moore, Pottstown veteran, is up to his old tricks, leading the point standing at Hatfield speedway in a determined bid to regain his coveted racing crown.

Moore, a United Parcel Post deliveryman who spends his weekends "burning" up the raceway, zoomed to the lead in the PROS point scuffle with 155 to 125 each for Jack Rudy, Reading, and Dick Havens, Doylestown.

He'll be out to strengthen his top rung standing when stock car action returns to the third-mile Hatfield track Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

Moore drives the No. 4 owned by Wayne Carl, Limerick garageman.

OTHERS IN the top ten are Freddy Adams, Kutztown, 120; Paul Bologash, Ironton, 115; Eddy Horn, Chalfont, and Les Farley, Califon, N. J., 105 each, and Johnny Mackison, York; Warren Mutter, Boyertown, and Tommy Sheetz, Pottstown, 100 each.

In the other portion of the racing double-bill, George Dilworth, West Point, Pa., and Bobby Brack, Quakertown, both will be in quest of their second feature triumphs. Brack won the Bell opener in April while Dilworth was victorious in the last outing.

Other Bell drivers are Johnny Bright, Hellertown; Blaine Sadler, Norristown; George Rounsavill, Doylestown; Will Buehnle, Sellersville, to name only a few.

Indians Crash 17 Hits, Bombard LA Angels 13-5

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The power-hitting Cleveland Indians buried the Los Angeles Angels 13-5 with 17 hits Thursday.

John Romano, Woody Held, Willie Kirkland and Bubba Phillips hit home runs for Cleveland.

The Angels' Leroy Thomas joined in the extra base group with two homers, the first in his major league career.

The victory gave Cleveland the series, 2-1.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant (4-0) was the winning pitcher although he yielded to reliever Barry Latman in the seventh inning.

The loser was Ron Moeller (0-4). Los Angeles used six pitchers.

Cleveland started the scoring parade with back to back home runs by Romano and Held in the second inning. Romano's came with a runner on base.

The roof really fell in on Los Angeles in the fifth inning when the Indians batted around and scored five runs on five hits.

Little Albie Pearson's double scored Rocky Bridges for the first Angel run in the third and he added another double later. The main run producers were Kirkland and Romano, who drove in four apiece.

Saints Win, 4-2 On Petro Homer

Petro then settled down and fanned the next three batters to end the threat. It was his lone inning of work, but it was enough to assure him of the pitching victory.

Tom Drabick worked the next three innings, allowing one hit and fanning one. The hit was a double by Nick Romano in the seventh. He reached third when Left Fielder Ed Kelly erred on the play, but was stranded as the next two batters grounded out and Garrigan fanned to end the game.

The Saints got an insurance tally in the fifth on singles by Stutz and Marcheski, sandwiched around a walk to Petro.

The victory gave the Saints a 7-2 record and still a running chance at the Suburban Catholic league crown.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A MAN WAS FISHING peacefully one summer morning when he suddenly heard a woman's voice shrilling, "Help! Help! I'm drowning!" He dropped his pole, dove into the lake and swam to the spluttering girl, and grabbed her firmly by the leg.

Unfortunately, it was made of wood and came off. He reached for her again and clamped a hand around her jaw. This time he came up with a set of false teeth. On the third attempt he fastened his hands in her hair, but alas, she was wearing a wig.

"You fool!" she gasped. "Do something . . . Get me ashore."

"My dear," he gasped, "I'm doing the best—I can—but you—must give me—a little co-operation."

An insurance agent received this inquiry from a lady in Wichita: "If I take out one of your special policies on my husband's life, exactly what will I get if he dies?" The agent replied: "If he dies naturally, $10,000. If he dies accidentally, $20,000. If he dies intentionally, thirty years."

Top Schoolman Is Slated As Memorial Day Speaker

Dr. Leon H. Farrin, supervising principal of Boyertown Area schools, will be the principal speaker at the Boyertown Memorial Day program Tuesday following the annual parade through town.

Memorial Day activities, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars post 3487 and Charles B. Yerger post 471, American Legion, will begin with the assembly of parade participants on the Tung-Sol parking lot, Second and Jefferson streets, at 9:30 a. m.

Organizations to be in the line of march are: VFW auxiliary, members of the VFW and Legion posts, Girl scouts, Brownies, Cub scouts, Boy scouts, Boyertown Area Junior and Senior High school bands, Oley High school band, Civil Air patrol, and school children.

The Legion and VFW firing squad and Color Guards will assemble at the VFW home, 123 South Chestnut street, at 9:15 a. m. They will depart from the home for the Union cemetery, for a short service at 9:30 a. m. They will then join the parade at Franklin street where all will proceed to Third street, to Madison street, to East Philadelphia avenue, to Mennonite cemetery where the parade will halt for the firing squads to fire three volleys, then depart for Fairview cemetery, West Philadelphia avenue, for the program.

THE PROGRAM, scheduled for 10:30 a. m., will be opened with invocation by the Rev. Fred S. Blank, pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, Boyertown. The audience will sing "Star Spangled Banner", accompanied by the Boyertown Area Senior High school band under the direction of Arlen R. Saylor, conductor.

Introductory remarks by Frank Van Horn, VFW commander, will be followed by selected music by the senior band. A welcome by Norman Gross, Legion commander, will precede choral selections by the Boyertown Area Schools chorus, under the direction of Sidney Mollard, director.

Following an address by Dr. Farrin, the Boyertown Area Junior High school band, directed by Frank J. Ferraro, will play selected music after which the Rev. Kenneth L. Kline will give the benediction.

A salute by the VFW and Legion Firing squads will be followed with Taps by members of the band.

Miss Reigh graduated from Boyertown Area High school in 1960.

Her fiance attended the Boyertown Area High school and is presently employed by Superior Tube company, Collegeville.

A Summer wedding is planned.

RUBICON IS PUNY

The Rubicon river, which Julius Caesar made famous when he crossed it on Jan. 10, 49 B. C., on his way from Gaul to Rome, is a modest stream. Often dry in Summer, it resembles a drainage ditch in Winter.

Hodges Says Government Will Take Any Action To Promote Business

NEW YORK (AP)—The Kennedy administration is not "anti-business" and it is not "a business man's government as such," Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said Thursday.

Hodges — himself a former business man in the textile manufacturing field, said in a speech prepared for delivery before the nation's top steel industry exec—the present administration is "committed to the support of the private enterprise system, a sound currency, and a relationship with business marked not by antagonism and suspicion, but by respect, understanding and fruitful collaboration."

Hodges spoke at the concluding session of the two-day, 69th annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute. More than 1000 industry leaders took part, with virtually all of those who spoke for the record decidedly optimistic about the industry and the over-all economy.

Hodges said the administration intends to take every possible action, consistent with the public interest, which will promote the growth and prosperity of business and enable it to attain its full economic potential.

"In return," he added, "we expect business to meet its obligations: to run its affairs ethically and to exert to the fullest measure its powers of innovation, initiative and hard work."

He suggested that one way business men may be able to help themselves would be to make use of the proposal in President Kennedy's tax program providing tax credit for extra investment in new plants, machinery and equipment. He said this is not a substitute for accelerated depreciation ("which may be developed") but offers the most immediate incentive for added investment with the least loss of Federal revenue.

Increased investment in capital goods is necessary, he said, because less than one-third of present U.S. industrial capacity has been built since 1950. From 1950 to 1958, he added, the United States put only one-sixth of its total output into capital formation compared with one-fifth or more for Japan, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Canada and Sweden.

An earlier speaker, from an earlier presidential administration, also cited some U.S. statistics as a warning.

Arthur F. Burns, president of the National Bureau of Economic Reserach and onetime top economic adviser of President Eisenhower, said this country in 1950 exported $3.63 worth of finished manufacturers for every dollar of manufactured imports. This margin had shrunk to $1.99 in 1960, he said.

Toastmasters Name Outstanding Speaker

F. William Heilman was voted the outstanding speaker at a meeting of the Pottstown Toastmasters club Thursday night at the Elks lodge.

Other speakers were Philip Lang, William Teasdale, Robert Swoyer and Jack Bicher.

Twenty-one members attended.

HEY, YOU FORGOT TO TURN OUT YOUR LIGHTS!—A ripping, splashing sound woke Ira Yates from his slumber at his home in Menlo Park, Calif. Mrs. Eleanor Hoffman, his neighbor, explained she stopped her car in her driveway and was opening her garage door when the car's brakes slipped. The car rolled 105 feet.

Legislators Hit News Critics Of Expense Fund

HARRISBURG, (AP)—Pennsylvania legislators swung back at their editorial critics in long-simmering frustration over newspaper condemnation of their expense allowances.

At the height of the debate, one legislator proposed that the news corps be ousted from the section in the House and from the Capitol newsrooms as well.

When one legislator stood up to defend the newsmen, the discussion turned into an exchange of personal attacks with another member.

Although legislators from time to time have spoken on the floor to defend themselves against editorial criticism, this was the most prolonged attack against the press in the memory of veteran Capitol Hill newsmen.

ALTHOUGH the expense allowance—a $3000 compensation voted by the legislators last month — was not specifically mentioned, legislative sources conceded off the floor that this was the motivation behind the sudden open attack.

Newspapers across the State have been decrying the expense allowance for several weeks. It currently is tied up in a court suit in a test of its constitutionality.

The hour-long debate in the House started innocently enough when Rep. Herbert Fineman, Philadelphia Democrat, rose to defend himself against an editorial which appeared last week in a local newspaper (The Harrisburg Patriot).

FINEMAN maintained that the editorial inferred that he, as chairman of the House State Government committee, was planning to kill a bill to require lobbyists around the Capitol to register.

(Lobbyists are representatives of organizations and various groups hired to influence the fate of legislation before the General Assembly).

The Philadelphia legislator said the bill had been tied up in his committee since Jan. 31 because the committee has been deluged with other work. He noted that the committee had taken up the bill Tuesday and approved it for consideration by the full House.

Majority Leader Stephen McCann described Fineman's remarks as the opening barrage against editorial writers.

Fineman commented that the newspaper editorials "have made the legislators look like a bunch of dim-witted, slow, graft-minded, stupid individuals who could not get gainful employment elsewhere . . ."

Picking up the attack, McCann complained that the Legislature and its committees "never, as yet, have been given credit in any newspaper for he numerous hours of meetings that you meet; the numerous committee meetings that are held, and the number of bills that you are asked to act on in any given committee meeting."

He spoke of many hours spent by the legislators outside the sessions preparing for the business of each session and yet, the newspapers "talk about the things we do not do."

The 1961 Legislature is setting a record of which both Democrats and Republicans can be proud, he declared, and concluded:

"Therefore, I say, and I ask, that as we start from this day forward, that the editorial policy and pages of newspapers also give an equal break to accomplishments of this Legislature and its program and the work of these members who have worked in these committees."

It was Rep. David M. Boies, D-Allegheny, a veteran House member and a dentist who came up with the suggestion that the press gallery be abolished and the newsroom closed until the newsmen can "show that they will do what is expected of them, to give the public some service and not spend their time detracting from the Legislature."

He described the House press gallery—located in the front of the chamber near the speaker's rostrum—as "the wigwam . . . where the hatchet-men have their abode."

When Rep. Maurice H. Goldstein, R-Allegheny, a onetime newspaperman who is now an attorney, got up to suggest newspapermen have a right to criticize and the legislators should stand on their own feet, a near free-for-all debate developed.

Speaker H. G. Andrews, who had stepped down before the debate started to attend to some other business, returned to calm down the argument and bring it to a close.

Fineman suggested that Goldstein was only seeking publicity to further his own candidacy for an Allegheny county judgeship. Goldstein won the GOP nomination last week to run for judge in the Fall.

Goldstein retaliated in kind and members began jumping to their feet to join in the discussion.

While only Democrats participated in the attack, their remarks received enthusiastic applause from both sides of the political aisle.

After the storm subsided, Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom issued a statement criticizing the Democratic lawmakers for their press attacks.

He described the action as 'part and parcel of the Democratic party's efforts nationally to suppress criticism," adding:

"We have seen this being done nationally and now the plan is unfolding here in Pennsylvania."

Referring to the House speeches, he continued:

"Now top administration spokesmen in the Legislature have gone as far as to threaten to deny to reporters sent to Harrisburg to cover and report on State government news the privilege of a place to work, access to pubic records and telephone facilities, and all the modern necessities of quick communication."

Asked to comment on Bloom's statement, Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse said tersely:

"I would remind the Republican chairman that it was under a Democratic Governor (George M. Leader in 1957) that the State's first right-to-know law was enacted."

That law made it a requirement for public agencies to give notice of meetings and to transact their official business in public. Newsmen also were given more access to public records under the statute.

Bloom's statement mentioned nothing of the legislative expense allowances which were backed by legislators in both parties.

Grange Thanks Legion For Anti-Red Efforts

The controversial film "Operation Abolition" was shown Thursday night at the regular meeting of the Norco Grange in the Grange hall, Cedarville. Harry Bickel, secretary, said the movie was well received and "the Grange extended thanks to the American Legion for combatting subversive elements in the community."

An award for the best potential farmer was presented to Miller C. Long, Kenilworth, a Senior at Owen J. Roberts High school. An award as the best potential homemaker was presented to Kay Shantz, Birchrunville, also a Senior at Owen J. Roberts.

Charlotte Ropeter, master, presided at the meeting.

Don't Forget To Get Your Picnic Supplies For Decoration Day . . .
Also Flowers and Plants

Every Friday
STARTING AT 6:30 P.M.

We've had a lot of nice articles brought in for this week's auction . . . dining room living room and breakfast sets, appliances . . . stoves and washers, lamps, dishes, glassware, tools . . . all kinds of odd pieces of furniture. We're gonna keep the auctioneers busy . . . come and listen—you'll agree it's lots of fun; and you'll pick up some real good bargains, too.

Bring in your auction merchandise or call FA 6-0350 for truck service.

U.S. Marshals Seize Ousted American Exchange Brokers

Blue Chip Losses Block Stock Market Advance

NEW YORK, (AP)—For the first time this week, more stocks advanced than declined Thursday but the stock market averages were dragged lower by further losses of some prominent blue chips.

General Motors and DuPont resumed their decline as a result of the Supreme court decision that DuPont must divest itself of its GM stock. American Telephone fell 2¼ to 119¾ despite the fact that the anti-trust "investigation" that brought it under selling pressure Wednesday was described as merely a "routine check" Thursday.

Overall, in a market of 1274 issues traded, gainers outnumbered losers by 543 to 483 but the verdict of all popular market averages was that "the market" had suffered a decline. New highs for the year totaled 52 and new lows 7.

A big highlight was a runup of 19½ points to a new high of 230 by American Home Products on news of a 3-for-1 stock split proposal. Even after some profit taking, this issue closed at 220 for a net gain of 9½.

The AP average fell 1.20 to 248.30 with industrials off 1.50, rails off .60 and utilities off .80.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 6.36 to 690.16.

Volume was 3.76 million shares compared with 3.97 million Wednesday.

Youths Attend Rotary Meeting

Four Pottstown area youths attended a meeting of the Pottstown Rotary club Thursday night at Brookside Country club.

The youths will participate in a "tomorrow's leaders" course at Camp Hilltop near Downingtown from June 18 to 23.

The youths were: Richard Steltz, and Terry Nettles of Pottsgrove High school; Ronald Frerichs of Pottstown Senior High school and Monte Overholtzer of Owen J. Roberts High school.

George Luerssen, in charge of Rotary Youth committee, spoke briefly, and showed a film on the past year's activities at the camp.

More than 90 members attended the meeting at which Herbert R. Maack, president, was in charge.

Wall Street Appears Relieved As Speculative Fever Subsides

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Speculative fever has subsided for the time being and Wall Street appears glad.

The Securities and Exchange Commission's investigation of the American Stock Exchange and the warning against thoughtless speculation by Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, initially put on the brakes.

And now, said L. O. Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co., the Supreme Court's decision that Du Pont must dispose of its 63 million shares of General Motors stocks "has been a factor in taming speculation."

He pointed out that the development had a part in interrupting the follow-through from last week's new high in the Dow Jones industrial average.

And, Hooper said, fewer customers are opening new accounts and the scramble for new issues is less hectic.

As for Du Pont and General Motors stocks, Hooper commented:

"Until the tax status of the Du Pont distributions of General Motors is clarified (probably by legislation) there will be a cloud of possible excess supply and possible high taxes over these two stocks.

"Both of them easily could sell moderately lower over the intermediate term. It may be well to remember, however, that neither of these stocks is excessively appraised on the basis of merit."

Goodbody & Co. finds that the small investor seems wary of the upside as indicated by the fact that odd-lot sales (less than 100 shares) have almost consistently exceeded odd-lot purchases for weeks.

"The market has taken news of investigations and of diplomatic defeats almost without a quiver," it says. "Perhaps the only thing to worry about at the moment is that bulls are springing up like May flowers. We see nothing in the present outlook to indicate an important reaction. The trend is still upward."

Couple Auctions Farm Equipment

The property, tools and equipment of a retiring Earlville farm couple, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Whelan, were auctioned by the Tri-County Auction company.

The sale was not completed because no agreement was made on the correct bid for the farm house.

Negotiations are still in progress on the bids.

Some of the items sold were: milling machine, $147; accessories for the machine, $65; lathe, $50; accessories for the lathe, $150; grinders, $16 to $20, and an air compressor, $60.

David Blank, auctioneer, was in charge of the sale Wednesday. More than 150 persons attended.

Cost Of Living Remains Steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Thursday living costs remained unchanged at record levels in April, "marking a further extension of the over-all stability" shown since last October.

While the Labor Department's consumer price index was steady for the second straight month, there were some sharp movements up and down in individual items.

There was, for example, a record rise in used automobile prices for this season. Also, there were increases in charges for fruits and and vegetables, movie tickets, and health insurance.

Gasoline prices dropped. So did women's clothing, new autos, meats, poultry and eggs.

The price index stood at 127.5 in April, a peak first reached last December. This meant that prices last month averaged 27.5 per cent higher than in 1947-49, the base period for the index.

Robert J. Myers, deputy commissioner of labor statistics, told a news conference that May probably will show no over-all price change. However, he said he looks for some upward movement in June and July.

Father-Son Team Charged With Stock Conspiracy

NEW YORK (AP)—The father-son brokerage team of Jerry and Gerard Re, kicked out of the American Stock Exchange earlier this month, was arrested Thursday on federal charges of illegal trafficking in securities.

One of the bases of the government's complaint against the pair was the 1959 sale of 3,000 shares of Thompson-Starrett Co., Inc., common stock to Toots Shor, Manhattan restaurateur.

U. S. marshals seized the Res at their home in late morning. News of the arrest was withheld, however, until the American Stock Exchange closed in mid-afternoon.

Taken before U. S. Commissioner Earle N. Bishopp, Jerry Re, 64, and Gerard, 38, were released in bonds of $10,000 and $25,000 respectively pending grand jury action.

They are charged in a government complaint with conspiring to violate the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. The charge carries a maximum sentence upon conviction of five years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

The Res were kicked out of the American Stock Exchange after the Securities and Exchange Commission found them guilty of a $10 million manipulation of stocks of nine corporations.

The former president of Thompson-Starrett, financier Jennis M. Doroshaw, told the SEC he promised $75,000 to Jerry Re in one market-rigging scheme. Thompson-Starrett, an engineering and construction company, since has had a complete change of management.

The government in its complaint cited a series of acts attributed to the Res and held to be part of a conspiracy that began in January 1959.

Among them was a meeting at the Astor Hotel in April of that year between Jerry Re and Shor. The latter sold his West 51st Street restaurant two years ago and currently is building a new one on West 52nd Street.

The complaint said that Jerry Re "accepted an order from Shor for the purchase of 3,000 shares of common stock of Thompson-Starrett Co., Inc., which order did not specify when or at what price said order should be executed."

The complaint also cited what was described as sworn testimony from Townsend E. Allen—not identified further—that on April 16, 1959, he bought 3,000 shares of Thompson-Starrett for Shor's account at the direction of Jerry Re.

Morgenthau declined to go beyond the bare outline of the complaint. There was no indication how Shor had fared on his stock purchase.
